Minnesota Senator Nominated As VP

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)— The 1964 Democratic National Convention, happily following the recommendation of President Johnson, Thursday gave its vice presidential nomination to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota by acclamation.

Humphrey was the man most delegates expected to get the vice presidential nomination. He had topped the betting odds for weeks. There was no question about his willingness.

The senator was being interviewed for a radio program when he got a telephone call from the President in midafternoon. Soon afterward, he hurried to the airport and took off for Washington.

When a reporter asked him whether he thought "this is it," Humphrey answered, "I just don't know."

"All I know is that the President called me and asked me to come to Washington to talk over the matter with him."

Johnson told newsmen that during the afternoon he also hoped to discuss the vice presidency, personally or by telephone, with several governors and senators, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, U.N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and others.

The President said he wanted to be sure he would make the right choice.

Johnson also expressed great pleasure at the way the convention here has been going.

The President plans to fly to the convention Thursday to deliver his acceptance speech and join in a giant birthday party for his 56th anniversary.

Mrs. Johnson and daughter Lynda were coming ahead of the President by a day. Daughter Luci has been here since Monday, hopping around to teen-ager affairs staged by Young Citizens for Johnson.

The presidential nomination was a certain, formal, set-in-advance affair, for Johnson.

It would come as his family, 5,000 convention delegates, 20,000 spectators and the nation's television audience looked on.

The President didn't even announce for the top spot on the party ticket. It came as a matter of course, starting almost at the instant he took command of government upon the tragedy of John F. Kennedy's death.

But it wasn't so many years ago that this son of a tenant farmer and the rugged Texas hill country thought that never in his lifetime would the Democratic nomination go to a Southerner, or that he could be elected if it did.

Now it's up to him to prove he was doubly wrong, by defeating Republican Barry Goldwater in November.

The honor of placing the Johnson name in nomination was two fold. The President tossed tradition aside and asked Gov. John Connally of Texas, a longtime friend and ally, and Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California, a politically important state, to make nominating speeches.

Reuther, Johnson Confer

DETROIT (AP) — Walter P. Reuther reportedly gave President Johnson a briefing on the status of auto labor negotiations in advance of Wednesday night's meeting at which the United Auto Workers will select a possible strike target.

Union sources said that Reuther, the UAW president, discussed the contract situation with the President.

The briefing apparently took place in Washington. Johnson said he talked with Reuther about the antipoverty program and a possibility of opening his election campaign in Detroit on Labor Day.

Reuther and his 24 fellow members of the UAW executive board were to take one more look at progress—or lack of it — in contract talks at Ford, General Motors and Chrysler before making their decision.

Auto Industry

The auto industry, which barely has started production of its 1965 models, nervously awaited the decision.

GM and Chrysler negotiators went through routine contract talks Wednesday without a break in their stalemate.

Ford and the UAW are not due to meet again until Thursday.

William E. Simkin, chief of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, was scheduled to sit as an observer in the final days of contract talks. The pacts run out Aug. 31.

The companies indicated they will stand pat on their present offers of new three-year contracts, which include what Reuther estimated as a package increase of about 35 cents an hour over the next three years. The basic average hourly wage now is $3.01.

The UAW and the Big Three agreed that the offers exceed the 30-cent package for which the union settled in 1961. Reuther said that settlement was worked out in the final days of a recession and that the current offers do not reflect current record high profits and sales.

Talks between the UAW and Big Three not only involve about 550,000 workers directly, but could affect patterns for contract demands in other industries.

It was generally conceded that if the UAW strikes one of the Big Three the effects of the walkout would be felt in every segment of the nation's economy.

Florida Ready For Cleo

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Cleo, small but still carrying vicious 100-mile winds near her center, headed up the Florida coast Wednesday night.

The hurricane had been aiming directly at Miami earlier in the day and had sent the city's million residents into preparedness.

But as night came, Cleo veered slightly and it appeared gales would only brush the heavily populated southeast Florida coast.

But residents still kept a wary eye on the third tropical storm of the year. It has left a rising toll of death and destruction in its wake.

The Weather Bureau said the thinly populated islands of Bimini and Grand Bahama, about 60 miles east of Miami, were directly ahead of the storm and would feel her full fury.

Cleo already has killed more than 70 persons during its tour of the Caribbean.

Block after block of resort hotels were boarded up. Key Biscayne, a swanky residential island just off Miami, was ordered evacuated. A seven-foot tide was predicted there.

Just about every worker in downtown Miami was sent home early. Schools were closed. Hundreds of pleasure boats sailed up the Miami River, which winds through downtown, to escape battering surf.

Truck Knocks Off 20 Posts; Driver Hurt

BLAIRSTOWN, N. J. — Edward Sabat, 24, of Garfield, N.J., was injured yesterday at 12:45 p.m. when the power steering on his 70,000 pound gravel truck apparently failed on a curve, causing the truck to careen to the side of the road, knock down 20 guard rails and overturn on Rt. 94 about a mile east of Columbia, N. J.

Sabat was treated at the General Hospital of Monroe County for cuts of the scalp, right leg and elbow and released State Police at Blairstown, N. J. said. He was taken to the hospital by the Blairstown ambulance.

According to New Jersey State Police, the truck also struck an electric utility pole and knocked the wires down. The wires shorted and started a grass fire in the field. Police summoned the Portland Fire Co. which quickly extinguished the fire, and washed down spilled gasoline.

Firemen were on the scene for about two hours.

The truck, after rolling over, came to rest in a clover field on the farm property of Oliver Brugler of Columbia, N. J. Brugler allegedly would not allow the tow truck to remove the wreckage until they paid him for damage to his field. He demanded $50 damages, but an agreement was reached and the truck was removed.

Trooper Gabriel Simonetta of State Police at Blairstown, N.J. was the investigating officer.

LBJ Convention Choice By Acclamation Vote

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Fervent, jubilating Democrats handed Lyndon B. Johnson the presidential nomination by acclamation Wednesday night—along with the party battle flag to carry off to the 1964 political wars against Republican Barry Goldwater.

And this was the signal for Johnson to march into Convention Hall.

Running Mate

He came not to accept his own nomination — that comes Thursday night on his 56th birthday — but to tell the Democratic legions he wants Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota as his running mate.

This was a secret he had revealed just before flying out of Washington for Atlantic City to tell the delegates. Humphrey came with him.

Johnson's announcement allowed the 34th Democratic National Convention to swing quickly into the second major bit of business on the brightest evening of a convention that hasn't had much to whoop it up about.

It will be Johnson and the bubbling, energetic Humphrey against the GOP team of Goldwater and Rep. William E. Miller of New York.

Auditorium Crammed

This auditorium — the world's largest — was crammed so full that all the doors were banged shut before the convention session began.

Johnson didn't have much trouble getting in, though.

Neither did Mrs. Humphrey, who joined Lady Bird Johnson in the presidential box.

On the flight from Washington, the President had watched on television while his name was being placed in nomination.

He and Humphrey shifted to a helicopter, then to a car to get into town.

Back of Convention Hall, chorus girls in scanty costumes and long black silk stockings raced ahead of the presidential limousine, then climbed atop parked autos to wave at the pair and scream: "We want LBJ."

Announces Choice

Johnson made known his choice for vice president as he met reporters at an airport. With Humphrey by his side, he walked up to the newsmen.

"Meet the next vice president," he said.

Humphrey grinned and accepted congratulations.

About the same moment, the gavel banged the nominating session of the convention to order.

Mrs. Johnson was there and drew a roaring ovation when she was introduced by John W. McCormack, the convention chairman. The organ belted out "Hello, Lyndon" and the crowd got on its feet. Horns blew and cowbells clanked.

The First Lady was dressed in black with a mink wrap around her shoulders.

Lynda, Luci

On either side were daughters Lynda and Luci, smiling and waving. Lynda was in olive green, Luci in apple green with a coat.

Long streamers proclaiming "LBJ for the USA' hung from the ceiling.

Humphrey, all along, had been regarded as the man most likely to get the vice presidential nomination.

Humphrey and Sen. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut had been summoned to the White House by the President Wednesday afternoon to discuss the vice presidency.

After the conferences with Johnson, Dodd told newsmen he had asked the President to "include me out."

Airport Authority Okays $114,562 Bid

MT. POCONO — Last night a Dunmore construction firm once again submitted the low bid to the Pocono Mountain Airport Authority for a combination terminal-hanger building and eight individual T-shaped hangers. This time, however, the bid was $114,562—or $34,000 under the previous bid.

The successful bidder was J. D'Andrea, whose bid was $20 below one submitted by the Paris Construction Co. of Cannonsburg.

E. Kenney Crothers, authority architect, said the low bid will be studied and if acceptable a contract will be awarded at an Authority meeting Tuesday Sept. 1, at 8 p.m. in the Casino Building in Mt. Pocono.

Last night's bids ranged from the low, to $149,464. This was in sharp contrast to the original bids which ranged from $151,000 to $185,000 and were rejected by the authority. The architect's estimate for the project was $111,000.

In addition to D'Andrea and Paris, bids were received from Daniel R. Wise of Scotrun, $149,461; Collins and Maxwell of Easton, $145,000; Ralph H. Woelfel of Hazleton, $124,740 and Seip Enterprises of Mt. Pocono, $121,700.

The work is expected to be completed about 60 days after contracts are awarded. Plans call for 80 by 100 foot hanger building with office and waiting room space, eight T-shaped hangers and paving around the main building and T-hangers.

Quarter Mill Tax

The project is being financed by levying a quarter mill real estate tax on five of the seven municipalities supporting the airport, plus a $15,000 yearly contribution from the Monroe County Commissioners.

The two sponsoring townships who do not levy a tax for the airport contribute a payment that is almost equal to what the quarter mill would raise.

The sponsoring municipalities are the townships of Barrett, Coolbaugh, Paradise, Pocono Tobyhanna and Tunkhannock and Mt. Pocono Borough.

S. Viet Council Stalled

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Officers of the ruling revolutionary council were stalled Thursday on a key point of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh's program for governmental reform, his pledge that they will return to strictly military duties.

Complicated Situation

Complicating the situation was a report that the 37-year-old strong man has two rivals, both influential generals, for the national leadership he put in escrow on resigning the presidency under mob pressure Tuesday.

Fresh riots by Buddhist and student elements in the north and student threats of further disorders in Saigon reflected a deepening of the political crisis that has pushed the U.S.-backed war against Communist guerrillas into the background.

The casualty roll in Da Nang —the scene since Monday of violent Buddhist demonstrations against the government, Roman Catholics and the United States —rose to 11 dead and 61 wounded. Vietnamese troops, who had kept hands off, finally fired in the air to disperse some demonstrators.

There were further disorders in Hue. Students seized the radio station of that city, 40 miles from the troop-guarded frontier of Communist North Viet Nam.

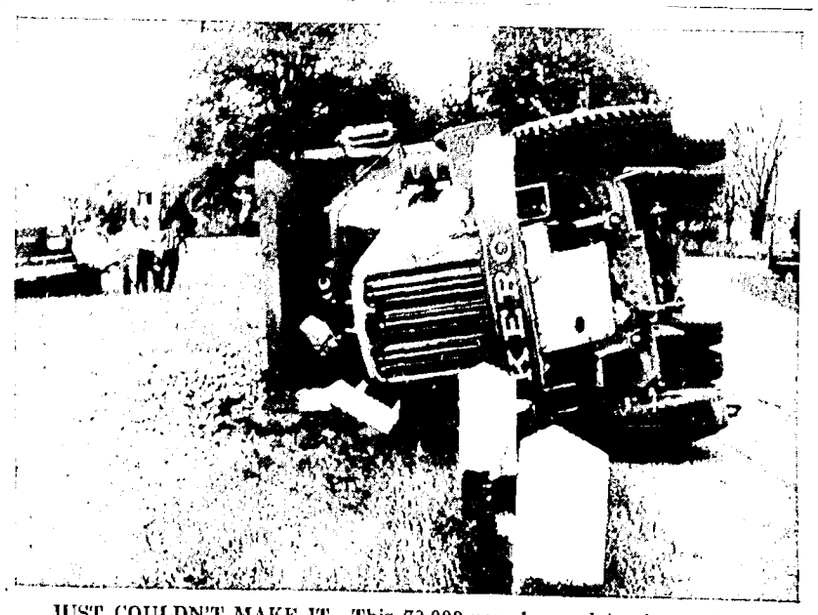
Khanh failed at a five-hour meeting Wednesday night to convince fellow members of the 60-man junta that they should quit politics.

Texans Fight Sleeping Sickness

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — This bayou city generally accepts its mosquitoes as a part of life. But now, thousands of residents are working to eradicate a female mosquito blamed for 216 suspected cases of encephalitis — sleeping sickness—since July 12.

At least 18 confirmed or suspected deaths from encephalitis have occurred. There were scattered reports of the disease in other Texas areas.

The state health department at Austin reported 33 suspected cases and one death in West Texas areas some 600 miles northwest of Houston. Isolated cases have been reported in the Texarkana area in the northeast corner of the state and in three coastal area counties not far from Houston — Matagorda, Brazoria and Orange.



JUST COULDN'T MAKE IT—This 70,000-pound gravel truck upset yesterday when the power steering apparently failed while the driver was attempting to round a curve on Rt. 94, one mile east of Columbia, N. J. Edward Sabat, 24, of Garfield, N. J., driver of the truck, was treated and released from the General Hospital of Monroe County.

Hubert Horatio Humphrey Acts, Sleeps, Eats Politics

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Sen. Hubert Horatio Humphrey acts, thinks, eats and sleeps politics.

The 53-year-old Minnesotan, after 16 years in the Senate, still has the ebullience, the optimism and the zest he brought to it as a fiery young liberal in 1949.

But there have been changes. Humphrey candidly has moderated his views to the point that he now prefers enacting a cut-down bill into law rather than going down to defeat trying for the entire loaf.

Legislative Credits

Always interested in issues and not only the strategy and tactics of politics, he has pursued this policy so successfully in the last half-dozen years that he has an impressive string of legislative credits.

Humphrey and President Johnson are entirely similar in their complete absorption in political matters.

And they are alike in a folksy, homespun approach to their trade. But in other ways the senator complements Johnson on the Democratic ticket. Humphrey is a Northerner, a liberal throughout his career, and an intellectual.

Capped His Career

The chunky Minnesotan capped his career in Congress this year with 15 weeks of slugging work as floor manager for the far-reaching civil rights bill.

His colleagues gave him high marks for this performance, in which a cloture vote to shut off a Southern filibuster was obtained for the first time on civil rights.

Humphrey's reward from the President was one of the pens used to sign the measure and a copy of Johnson's speech to the nation at the ceremony. Inscribed on the copy were these words: "To Hubert Humphrey — without whom, it couldn't have happened.'

High Court Okays Rights Hearing Date

WASHINGTON (AP) — An appeal questioning the constitutionality of the public accommodations sections of the new Civil Rights Act will be heard on a rush basis by the Supreme Court Oct. 5, the tribunal decided Wednesday.

Court Clerk John F. Davis announced this and said the argument will concern only the Heart of Atlanta Motel Corp. The Pickrick Restaurant, also of Atlanta, Ga., was involved in preliminary steps in the case but will not be directly concerned in the hearing.

Summer Adjournment

The court is now in summer adjournment and Oct 5 is the first day of its new fall term. Ordinarily the justices do not hear arguments or carry on anything but routine business on that day.

Requests for a prompt hearing were filed by both the motel corporation and the Justice Department. The motel has agreed to file its printed appeal with the court by Sept. 21. The Justice Department will file a reply brief by Sept. 28.

The hearing Oct. 5 will last at least two hours, with each side granted one hour.

Alabama, Mississippi Take Seats

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) Johnson took control of all the seats of their delegations at the national convention Wednesday night. They reportedly planned to hang on at all costs.

The move, by the handful of Democrats in each delegation pledged to support the President, was designed to block any attempt by unpledged delegates to take seats.

Most of Mississippi's regular party Democrats announced Tuesday night that they would not participate in the convention as a result of the ruling they would have to sign loyalty pledges.

Alabama's unpledged delegates kept their seats Tuesday and asked to be formally kicked out if they were not going to be allowed to take part in the proceedings. But no such orders came from convention officials.

Wednesday the Mississippi and Alabama loyalists moved first to have all the seats removed from the convention floor except for those who had signed pledges.

Barry Urges New Viet Position

AVALON, Calif. (AP) — Barry Goldwater said Wednesday the United States must improve its military position in South Viet Nam before entering any negotiations for peace there.

But, the Republican presidential nominee added, "my political bones tell me" that the Johnson administration is already making efforts to negotiate a peace before the presidential election.

Goldwater — wearing red trousers, a white pole shirt and blue tennis shoes — spoke to newsmen as he leaned on the stern rail of his vacation cruiser anchored off this Santa Catalina Island resort.

Approved were applications submitted by the Wilmington, Del., Country Club and the Biderman Country Club; the Boroughs of Hatboro and Southampton; the Atlantic Pipe Line company, and the Army Corps of Engineers.

The commission also held hearings on three subjects: Its budget for fiscal 1966; a proposal to amend the basin's comprehensive plan to include policy relating to underground water, and an amendment to add 19 projects previously approved but omitted because of procedural processes.

Pope Issues Arms Warning

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy (AP) — With a warning that some of the basic principles on which peace is founded are crumbling, Pope Paul VI appealed Wednesday to all nations to avoid an arms buildup.

In issuing a 1,300-word major peace appeal, the Pope said his thoughts were stirred by the current anniversary commemorations of the start of World Wars I and II.

Vatican circles noted it came during prolonged and deteriorating conflicts in Cyprus, Viet Nam and the Congo.

Meg Rumored Shipwrecked

OLBIA, Sardinia (AP) — Unconfirmed reports Wednesday night said Britain's Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowden, were shipwrecked Wednesday but had reached shore safely.

The reports said the princess, sister of Queen Elizabeth II, reached shore in a dinghy after jumping overboard in a lifejacket when a yacht owned by the Aga Khan struck a rock.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson flew by helicopter to the Democratic National Convention late Wednesday.

Mrs. Johnson was accompanied by her oldest daughter, Lynda Bird.

Pan Am Planes Back In Air

The Pennsylvania Story

Good Time Wasted

By Mason Denison

ATLANTIC CITY—To all intents and purposes the Pennsylvania delegation to the Democratic National Convention here this week might just as well have stayed at home!

None know this more emphatically than the delegates themselves as they sat and squirmed through the cut and dried convention byplay.

However what happened on this front insofar as the Pennsylvania donkey riders were concerned was not isolated; the same condition prevailed with virtually every other state delegation. The question of "who" would gain the presidential nod simply has not been germain.

Nevertheless the formal action of the State's delegation along with similar action on the part of the other delegations was a necessity; a ritual that had to be carried out officially.

The picture was far different from that portrayed by their GOP counterparts from the Keystone State at San Francisco last month when Pennsylvania was very much in the overall convention spectrum with a presidential hopeful in the offing.

The question arises as to which position the Pennsylvania Democratic delegate bloc might prefer, that is, the present calm, benign and well-knitted aroma that has settled comfortably over the delegation, or the explosive up-in-front potentially decisive role that faced the Pennsylvania GOP delegation last month.

The answer came nimbly from Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse himself: "We couldn't be in better position than we are now."

What the bespectacled state chairman meant was not that it wouldn't be delightful to have a presidential hopeful from Pennsylvania, but "under the circumstances" the almost innocuous and becalmed stand of Keystone State Democrats is the best stance that could be assumed in this particular presidential year.

That "under the circumstances" clause embraces an awful lot. In fact it is the key to Democrats for a successful campaign in Pennsylvania this fall.

For one thing, it is generally conceded that when you have a going thing, it's most unwise to try to upset the proverbial applecart.

It was this way on the presidential front. LBJ long ago was conceded to have the presidential wig firmly in his grasp, therefore ride along with it — which is precisely what Keystone State Democrats are doing.

Secondly, they know they have their hands more than full with the tiff in their own back yard in Pennsylvania where as the "outs" and the minority party they have something more than an uphill fight if they hope to carry Pennsylvania in the Democratic column this fall — and the statewide offices along with it.

Thus the concentration has been on maintaining a unified, tight working format with the simple and single objective of winning at home — rather than being even remotely concerned with making a name at the convention or trying to be "a" decisive factor.

This has been somewhat in contrast to the role of Democratic delegations from Pennsylvania in recent conventions where they were pretty much in the forefront. Just four years ago it was then Governor David L. Lawrence (an ardent supporter of Adlai E. Stevenson for the presidency) who somewhat dramatically popped the Keystone State's 81 votes behind John F. Kennedy — and it was Mr. Lawrence who placed the name of Lyndon B. Johnson in nomination for the vice-presidency.

The tiff and struggles on this score are missing from this convention. There has been no debate or argument on who would gain the front seat nod. Pennsylvania, like most other delegations, has in effect had to sit this one out.

On the "individual" front however the story is slightly different. President Johnson never forgot who it was that placed his name in nomination. Mr. Lawrence long has been riding high in the inner circle of the Johnson Administration. His role — individually — has been a key one throughout the convention. However, as for the delegation, it might just as well have stayed at home except for its needed official function.

This was simply "one of those years."

Branch Urges LBJ To Help Negro Voters

By Robert S. Van Fleet
Chief, Ottaway News Service

ATLANTIC CITY — Pennsylvania's most militant civil rights leader, Stanley Branch of Chester, joined leaders from other parts of the nation Wednesday in sending a telegram to President Johnson to ask that the National Democratic Convention do something for Negroes who have been jailed in freedom fights and for those who want to vote.

Branch, comedian Dick Gregory, and leaders from Washington, New York City and Chicago joined in the telegram which also went to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

"Unrest and Arrest"

The rights leaders, heading an organization called ACT, said there were two major unsettled problems: "unrest and arrest."

By arrests they were referring to 100,000 rights workers they say have been jailed as the result of rights activities.

By unrest they referred to the widespread movement to register more Negroes to vote in November.

On the latter subject, Branch said, they asked the president to send teams of federal registrars into areas where Negroes are meeting resistance in the effort to gain the vote.

Branch and the others, who are known as the more militant leaders in the Negro movement, said they have not reached a final conclusion on what type of demonstration will be used at the convention hall on the boardwalk.

Stall-In Considered

They were asked whether they might stage a stall-in and replied that it was under consideration.

At the Republican convention six weeks ago in San Francisco, rights workers outside the Cow Palace sat briefly blocking one of the exits, forcing delegates to find another way out after the session that nominated Sen. Barry Goldwater.

ACT was organized at Chester on March 14, Branch said. Its letters stand for nothing except what they spell.

Moss bogs begin as glacier-gouged lakes or ponds which, over the centuries, fill with decaying organic matter — microscopic aquatic plants, mosses, shrubs and trees.

Robinson Cautions People About Burning Debris

STROUDSBURG — Residents and visitors to the Pocono Mountains were cautioned yesterday against debris and brush burning unless adequate precautions are taken to prevent the fire from spreading.

G. R. Robinson, Delaware District forester, pointed out that the forests are experiencing their third successive dry summer. He said forest and grass fires have occurred all summer long due to the false sense of safety which some people obtain from scattered showers.

"The amount of rainfall has not been sufficient to moisten more than the upper layer of the forest floor," Robinson said. "This type of rainfall provides protection only during and for a short period after the shower.

"Debris fires started during these periods often burn into the ground and smolder for several days before bursting into flame again."

Robinson said individuals responsible for starting a fire or maintaining a fire hazard on their property from which a fire becomes out of control are responsible for paying costs of extinguishing the fire.

He said even small fires at this time of year are difficult and costly to fight.

Refund From Beer, Liquor Fees

20 Monroe County Communities Share $35,550

Record Harrisburg Bureau

HARRISBURG — Twenty Monroe County communities are sharing in a refund of $35,550 in beer and liquor license fees being returned to the municipalities where licenses have been issued, the State Liquor Control Board said yesterday.

The payments, which have been approved by the board and forwarded to the Auditor General and State Treasurer for final clearance and check-writing represent annual retail license fees paid to the board by establishments within the municipalities for either new licenses or renewals during the period from February 1 to July 31, 1964.

Monroe County municipalities and the amounts they will receive are as follows:

BOROUGHS — Delaware Water Gap, $600; East Stroudsburg, $3,100; Mt. Pocono, $1,350; Stroudsburg, $3,200.

TOWNSHIPS — Barrett, $4,050; Chestnuthill, $1,250; Coolbaugh, $1,800; Eldred, $450; Hamilton, $2,500; Jackson, $450; Middle Smithfield, $2,550; Paradise, $2,100; Pocono, $2,250; Polk, $900; Price, $150; Ross, $400; Smithfield, $3,400; Stroud, $2,600; Tobyhanna, $1,850; Tunkhannock, $600.

No strings are attached as to how the individual municipality may use the funds — which represent the entire license fee, the board said.

Borrowing Way Out Of Debt?

East Stroudsburg Area School Committee and Building Authority are playing with fire. Both groups apparently think it is possible to borrow their way out of debt. This situation came to light recently when the authority included an extra $42,000 in a $354,000 bond issue it awarded.

The $42,000 in the bond issue is scheduled to pay for re-conditioning a physical education area behind the high school and the football field. This amount has been tacked on $310,000 needed to cary out planned renovations of the old N. Courtland St. elementary school.

Up to this point the East Stroudsburg schoolmen appear to be doing business the same as hundreds of other school districts in the state. What makes this situation unique, is the fact the school committee included $42,000 in its 1964-65 budget to pay for work done on the physical education and football areas.

Now the authority has included this amount in a bond issue negotiated for a 29-year period at 3.733 per cent interest. This means taxpayers of the combined school district will pay interest on $42,000 for 29 years, when this amount of money is set aside in the current budget.

Some school committee members are arguing they need the $42,000 in the budget to pay the first and second installment on the bond issue needed to carry out the renovations of the elementary school without raising taxes. This is not a very strong argument, however.

Irving Sommer, a committee member from East Stroudsburg Borough School District, pointed out at a recent meeting that including the $42,000 in the bond issue will mean the taxpayers .. . "will pay $36,000 in interest on this money. We will be doing this when we have the money in the budget to pay for the work on the football field and physical education areas."

Using director Sommer's figures the district's taxpayers will spend $78,000 to re-condition an athletic area, when they could do the same job for $42,000 if the money in the budget was spent for this purpose.

Another borough school director, Irving Foltz, called the move to include an extra $42,000 in the bond issue a "fait accompli." Foltz meant the school committee could not do anything about the situation because the authority has already awarded the bond issue to bond company.

The building authority should not shoulder the entire blame for approving the bond issue, however. The school committee, at a meeting two months ago, voted to have the $42,000 included in the bond issue. Directors argued they could use the money in the budget to pay the first two installments on the bond issue.

It is assumed member school districts set their 1964-65 tax rates at a millage that would include raising the $42,000 included in the budget. What they did not include was money to pay the first installment on the $310,000, needed to pay for renovating the elementary school.

Now the school directors and authority are asking taxpayers to pay interest on $42,000 for 29 years so they can balance their budget and still have a new school without raising taxes.

Evidently the directors were afraid to raise taxes to cover the elementary school work—a project that has been kicking around for more than a year. They certainly can't claim they did not know the money would be needed.

This situation calls for a serious reassessment of the financial thinking of East Stroudsburg Area school directors. There is no question the directors are acting in good faith. But there is evidence the directors should take a serious look at the apparent theory that they can borrow their way out of debt.

Comment Of The Day

"As for the Republican keynoter, Gov. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, I must say he really tried hard, but he didn't make it. He wrote his speech for Rockefeller—he delivered it for Scranton—and the convention ended up with Goldwater—and now he won't buy it." Sen. John Pastore, Democratic convention keynoter.

Platform And VP

By Walter Lippmann

The Democratic Party is in the unique position today where many of the opposing party have a vital interest in losing the election. There is in fact little future for the Scrantons, the Keatings and what in better days were known as the Eisenhower moderates, unless Sen. Barry Goldwater suffers the kind of resounding defeat which the polls — if they are correct — are prophesying.

For the only way to undo what was done to the party in the Cow Palace is to prove that Goldwater Republicans are a minority of a minority. And so, as a matter of cold politics, the moderate Republicans, and also the genuine believers in a two-party system, have a stake in an indisputable success for the very broadly based political consensus which has formed around President Lyndon Johnson.

Although the platform is as yet not published as this article is written, it is clear that the platform will raise no sharp controversial issues among Democrats or with moderate and progressive Republicans. In foreign affairs and national defense, the administration occupies a position which, since the Hershey conference, cannot be seriously challenged in important matters.

A that conference Senator Goldwater yielded to Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Richard Nixon a veto on his foreign and defense policies. After that, he is not able to oppose the policy of co-existence which the Eisenhower-Nixon administration inaugurated.

In fiscal matters, in enacting a tax cut while there is a budgetary deficit, the administration has made an innovation which almost all Republicans regard as unsound. But this innovation is working better than any fiscal policy the country has known in this generation, perhaps in any generation.

On the question of the rights and opportunities of Negroes, the Democrats occupy the only possible position: as champions of the rights of Negroes, as enforcers, by consent when possible, of these rights, as sponsors of the opportunities which must not be withheld from Negroes any longer. Who except the irreconcilable racists, can object to that?

There is left the question of the Vice Presidency about which, rightly enough, there is deep interest as well as much suspense. The supreme consideration here is, of course that the candidate shall be fully qualified to be President. He should at the same time be the choice of the great majority of the party. These two considerations point unmistakably to Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

Although I have no inside information, it does not seem to me that the President has been playing a teasing game in not announcing his own choice until he himslef has been nominated for President.

As I see it, he has exercised a right of veto by excluding all the available candidates who had not been put to the test of election in reaching their present positions. There is no doubt that it is one of the President's deep convictions that the only right road to the Presidency is by election and not by appointment.

But having exercised his veto, what would it have been like if he had also named the candidate? Many of us would have felt that he was carrying the personal prerogatives of the Presidency to unseemly lengths. The alternative was to do what he is doing, to let a movement develop within the party and in the country which would confront the convention not with the personal choice of Lyndon Johnson, but with a popular mandate.

If, and I hope I can also say when, Humphrey is chosen, he will be a national figure. He will not be, like his Republican opponent, an unknown and handpicked politician. He will have instead not only high qualifications for the office, but a mandate from the people.

LBJ's Victory Strategy

By Roscoe Drummond

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—Every decision at this Democratic Convention plainly points up President Johnson's campaign strategy.

How LBJ expects to win in November is no longer in doubt. He has mapped his strategy. Everything that is being said and done here at Atlantic City—the mood of compromise surrounding the Mississippi and Alabama delegate contests, the moderation of the platform, and the pattern of the formal oratory—reveals the President's strategy.

It is this:

1—Be gentle with the South. Placate the Southern Democratic leaders and Southern voters just as far as possible.

2—Concentrate hard on winning the votes of Republican moderates the way Gen. Eisenhower concentrated on winning the votes of Democratic moderates.

3—Count on Sen. Goldwater to alienate the labor and liberal vote so totally that none of the populous, industrial states will be jeopardized by Mr. Johnson's "moderation."

These ingredients in the President's political strategy are all visible in the actions of the convention.

THE SOUTHERN INGREDIENT—Take the civil rights plank. Perhaps it does not need to say more because of Johnson's earnest advocacy of the new civil rights law and Goldwater's earnest opposition to it—but it could hardly say less. Rep. Carl Albert, Platform Committee chairman, was asked by a reporter whether he considered this a strong or a weak plank, and his revealing reply was:

"I would not call it a strong plank or a weak plank. It is a correct plank."

He took the same tack when he was asked a related question. His reply: "It is not a Southern plank; it is not a Northern plank. It is a proper plank."

That's it. The Johnson civil rights plank is "correct" and "proper"—correct and proper for its purpose of helping to hold the South in line for a pro-civil rights President himself from the South.

A blunt-speaking Democratic liberal, Sen. Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania, fumed, complained: "Don't call it a civil rights plank."

But a smooth-it-over Democratic liberal, Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota, sought to smooth it over by saying: "It isn't the words of the platform which count, but what the President and the party stand for."

THE REPUBLICAN INGREDIENT—Sen. John Pastore, of Rhode Island, the keynote speaker, appealed explicitly for the support of "Republican moderates," and the Johnson platform aims to make this support easy to come by.

Against extremism the Democrats adopted the exact plank which the Goldwater convention refused to give to the Republican moderates, repudiating the Communists, the Ku Klux Klan, and the John Birch Society by name.

Further, the Johnson platform stresses the value of private enterprise beyond anything the Democrats have said in decades. It proposes a tax revision to return revenue sources to the states. It promises frugal government and commits itself "to increase the freedom and effectiveness of the essential private forces and processes of the economy."

THE LIBERAL INGREDIENTS—From medicare to wide-ranging aid to education, the Johnson platform obviously maintains a large Federal role in social welfare. It strongly opposes all right-to-work laws which the labor unions so strongly resent. For the rest it counts on Mr. Goldwater to keep most of the liberal-labor vote Democratic.

What the Johnson platform—and strategy—seek is to appeal to everybody but the Far Right and the Far Left, which is what the Republicans have done until last month.

Off The Record:

—By BOB CLARK

GOP Campaign Chief?

The Republicans are going all out to unseat Rep. Van D. Yetter, Democraic assemblyman from Monroe County.

At a meeting last week it was decided to hire a campaign manager for Yetter's opponent, John Davis, Mt. Pocono businessman.

Insiders say that Bill Buckingham, the Saylorsburg resident who first blew the whistle regionally, extolling Barry Goldwater, will get the post.

If the Republicans executive committee goes through with their plans, it will be the first time a party-backed candidate got professional help in the open locally.

Other candidates in the past have had ghost writers to help them over some rough edges. However, these persons worked for a pay check that came from the public office aspirant, not the party.

Buckingham can be had. At the present the Saylorsburg drum-beater for Goldwater has been snaring Goldwater support in Lackawanna, Northampton, Luzerne and Monroe counties gratis. Now he'd like to get on someone's payroll.

GOP officials feel Davis is not well enough known despite a business that takes him to all parts of the county. Politically, the oil dealer has not made any great indentations in party circles — the committee people who are actually the bread and butter for a candidate.

It's funny how things work out. Two years ago Jerry Snyder, the young political aspirant who endeavored to beat Yetter the last time out, could have used a campaign manager. In fact the now resident of New Jersey didn't have the full support of the Old Guard GOP.

The veterans of area GOP politics didn't officially back Snyder, but they didn't help him either. Unofficially, though, some waged behind - the-scenes dealings killing off whatever chances Snyder had of winning although he lost by only a few hundred votes.

The betting gentry, however, doesn't see anyone dethroning Yetter his time. Most of the early wagers see Democrats also carrying the county in the presidential election too.

General Information:

Cantaloupes are in season now but the hardest job is to tell when they are ripe. We suggest that you feel the "scar" (the rounded depression at one end). If when gently pressed, it feels springy and has a strong aroma, it is ripe for eating. If not, leave it out of the refrigerator for a few days before eating. Half a cantaloupe contains only 40 calories, which makes his fruit a favorite among those who want to avoid a melon.

The "working man Republican candidate" for U. S. Senator, Raymond Harold Smith, of Pine Meadow, dropped by Tuesday.

He says he's trying to get on the November ballot by petitions, but if that fails he will conduct a write-in campaign.

He left a statement criticizing John Lodge, the regular Republican candidate, and also handed out some pot-holders.

Glad to get them. The ones from Horace Seely-Brown's unsuccessful 1962 senate campaign are about worn out.

She: "You unattached?"

He: "No. Just put together sloppy."

The Allen-Scott Report

Viet Nam Criticism

Paul Scott

dent Johnson is making significant last-minute changes in his acceptance speech on the blunt advice of the chairmen of two powerful House committees.

Representatives Carl Vinson, Ga., veteran head of the Armed Services Committee, and Thomas Morgan, Pa., head of the Foreign Affairs Committee, have warned the President he faces several potentially highly explosive developments on South Viet Nam when Congress reconvenes next week:

(1) A possible full-scale investigation of every aspect of the recent Gulf of Tonkin incident. The Armed Services Committee is being deluged with mail from all parts of the country sharply criticizing the White House and Defense Department handling of this affair — which has been caustically assailed by Senator Goldwater and other Republican leaders.

(2) A reputed "package deal" — now in process — under which General Nguyen Khanh is being replaced by a civilian regime in preparation for a "political settlement" of the protracted Viet Nam conflict by "neutralizing" that country. The Foreign Affairs Committee plans to question General Maxwell Taylor, new ambassador to Saigon, when he returns to Washington shortly for consultations.

Representatives Vinson and Morgan, attending the national convention as delegates, are conferring with Democratic leaders from other sections on the politics - charged Viet Nam problem.

It is understood the two House leaders are being told there is widespread public uneasiness over administration policies, particularly the mounting U.S. casualties and the Gulf of Tonkin incident. Apparently considerable feeling exists that the full story of the latter has not been told.

A number of state leaders reported the Republicans are vigorously stressing this contention, and voiced concern over their impact.

This information has been conveyed to the President with the strong suggestion it be dealt with "adequately and effectively" in his campaign - launching acceptance speech.

PUTTING THEM ON THE SPOT — Representative Vinson has set the stage for a possible investigation by his Armed Services Committee in a letter to Defense Secretary McNamara requesting a detailed report on the Gulf of Tonkin incident from beginning to end.

Preparations of this account has been turned over to Deputy Secretary Cyrus Vance.

Vinson's backstage letter specified that McNamara's report cover the events that preceded the North Vietnamese PT boat attacks on the U.S. destroyers, the U.S. air strikes on the Communist PT boat bases, and the controversy raging over the timing of the President's broadcast announcing this attack. The Republicans claim his speech afforded the enemy ample time to put up a heavy anti-aircraft defense.

All these points already have become involved in the presidential campaign, and indications are they will be even more so.

Both McNamara and Vance will be questioned by Vinson's committee after their report has been received. The committee then will determine whether to launch a full-scale investigation.

It's deemed very probable the Republicans will strenously demand that as they have been increasingly critical of administration handling of the Tonkin incident.

On the basis of authoritative information received by Representative Morgan, he wants General Taylor to confer with the Foreign Affairs Committee to get at the bottom of the following reports:

That the administration secretly favors a "political settlement" of the South Viet Nam problem by "neutralizing" that strife-torn country; and that when Taylor replaced Henry Cabot Lodge as ambassador he brought with him a so-called "package deal" under which General Khanh was to be replaced by a civilian president and possibly premier and military rule subordinated to a civilian regime.

Morgan has been told this far - reaching change in the South Viet Nam government is to be completed very soon, possibly within the next few weeks.

Stern admonitions from the State Department are credited as responsible for the exceptional restraint by the Khanh regime toward the student rioters who precipitated the governmental upheaval.

Several weeks ago this column reported that influential State Department officials were letting it be known that the ouster of Khanh was imminent and that he would be succeeded by a civilian government.

Dear Abby

A Dead End Street

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Like the taxidermist whose problem was a fiancee who couldn't stand the sight of stuffed animals, I have a problem. I am a mortician, and my fiancee can't stand my work, although I never discuss it after hours.

After having gone to mortician college and investing much time and money in my profession, I've become somewhat successful, and don't want to give it up.

My fiancee refuses to marry me unless I change my profession. I love her, but if I am going to support her, unlike the taxidermist, I can't store my zoo in the attic.

IN DEAD EARNEST

DEAR IN: If your fiancee doesn't dig your profession, it's thne to bury your relationship.

DEAR ABBY: Saturday night I was asked to baby-sit for some neighbors who had just moved into our neighborhood.

They agreed to pay me 50 cents an hour and asked me to be at their house at 7:30 p.m. sharp. I got there at about 7:25.

They didn't leave the house until 8:30. They came home at 12:30 that evening and paid me two dollars. I didn't say anything.

My mother said that since I was asked to be at their home at 7:30 I should have charged them for the time I sat and waited for them to leave. Do you agree with her?

Should I mention to them that they owe me 50 cents if they ask me to sit for them again? Or should I refuse to sit for them? They were very nice otherwise.

I am a 17-year-old girl.

CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Since you accepted the two dollars and said nothing, your silence complied that you were satisfied.

Say nothing, but should they ask you to sit for them again, tell them you charge from the time you are asked to be at their home.

DEAR ABBY: I wish you'd settle something for my husband and me.

About two years ago we went to a housewarming party for two of our closest friends. We gave them an expensive present.

We visit them in their home often and we have never seen our gift in any room. I want to ask about it but my husband thinks it would be rude. What would you do?

LIBBY

DEAR LIBBY: I'd listen to my husband.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Is This Another Wonder Drug?

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

When penicillin, discovered by Sir Alexander Fleming, was first used effectively almost 25 years ago, it introduced a new era of hope.

But at that time even the most enthusiastic experimenters never dreamed that this single new discovery would revolutionize the health status of mankind.

Now scientific hopes are centered on another contribution of Sir Alexander Fleming. In 1922, he discovered in the human body a powerful chemical substance, which he named Lysozyme. He noted that this substance had very strong germ-killing properties.

Since it was first found, Lysoeyme has been isolated and recognized in almost all the tissues and secretions of the human body.

Considered Vital

It is now considered to be a natural defense mechanism.

Scientists are so enthusiastic about the potential uses of Lysozyme that an international meeting was held recently in Milan, Italy, to review its great possibilies and outline a program for furher research.

Still in the experimental stage, Lysozyme has so far been used effectively against cerain types of cancer, for relieving severe pain, in the treatment of vical diseases, and in clearing up difficult skin conditions.

Sufficiently Successful

Results have been sufficiently successful, safe and promising to encourage further use.

Intensive studies on Lysozyme are being conducted at research centers all over the world.

So vast and promising are the potenials of Lysozyme that even skeptics must concede the possibility of another revolutionary era in medicine. Perhaps Lysozyme will join penicillin in making even greater the debt that mankind owes to Sir Alexander Fleming.

READERS' RELATED QUESTIONS

Is it good for the body to take penicillin for all infections?

The overuse and abuse of penicillin and antibiotics have occupied the attention of doctors everywhere.

The decision to use an antibiotic is one that takes mature medical judgment. Sometimes patients unwittingly exert pressure on their doctors for a "quick recovery" shot. Patients will do well to remember that it is far more time-consuming for a doctor to tell you why you should not have an antibiotic than it is to give it. Rely on his jujdgment. If he feels your condition needs an antibiotic, it will be prescribed without you asking.

Is penicillin the same as the "mycins"?

Technically they are markedly different in composition. Yet they both overlap in their effectiveness in the treatment of certain types of bacterial infections.

Is it safe to use penicillin left over from a bout of illness that occurred eight months ago?

New illnesses deserve their own drugs. A simple way to avoid confusion about the potency and safety of leftovers is to get rid of the drugs when the patient has recovered from that illness.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Dumbbell

Centuries ago it required hours of practice daily over a long period of time to learn how to ring tunes on huge cathedral bells. The noise created by beginners was a nuisance, so a system of dummy ropes and weights was devised — allowing learners to practice without disturbing the community. This noiseless device was called a "dumbbell."

The hours of pulling the ropes developed big muscles in the upper part of the body. When someone invented a similar device for taking exercise, it also was called a "dumbbell."

When a short bar with weighted spheres on each end was later introduced for exercising, the name "dumbbell" was transferred to it.

Japan Economic Leader In World, Shoesmith Says

By Stan Schaffer
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — Japan is a new economic leader among the world's nations, Thomas P. Shoesmith, foreign service officer and a former resident of Stroudsburg declared.

Thomas, 42, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Shoesmith of 309 N. 7th St., Stroudsburg, recently returned to Stroudsburg after a four-year tour of duty in Japan with the U.S. Foreign Service. He will remain with his parents until the expiration of his leave Oct. 10.

Shoesmith is stationed at the U. S. Counselet in Fukuoka, Japan, which is located near the southwestern tip of Japan.

This amazing little country has become a political and economic giant — and all in a are about the size of California, he said. Japan has a current population of about 95 million people.

Shoesmith said, "in addition, Japan has the world's fourth largest steel output, and the largest tonnage of ship building. The Japanese are primarily importers of agricultural products.

The United States primarily exports raw materials to Japan, and since 1962, U.S. exports will have tripled in a 10 year period. Then, too, Japanese imports have increased tremendously to a current 3.2 billion dollars."

Economic Stability

Also, "Japan is no longer a quaint foreign country," Shoesmith said. Other examples of its economic growth are that Japan is second only to the U.S. in television ownership; about 25 per cent of western Japan's 17 million people own a washing machine; and about 10,000 new cars per month are put on the road with good hopes of the middle class family owning one," he added.

Primary Duties

"As a foreign service officer in Fukuoka, I have four primary duties," Shoesmith said. "They are," he went on:

—"To provide assistance to Americans going abroad or traveling abroad; and citizens in Japan who are dealing there or going abroad.

—Political and economical reporting of conditions in my territory which covers some 20,000 square miles to the counsel district in Western Japan.

—Encourage trade between Western Japan and the U.S.; assist American and Japanese businessmen who are engaged in the importing and exporting business.

—Representative responsibilities which means an attempt to create a sympathetic understanding of the United States, its people and the American foreign policy," Shoesmith said.

"In fact," he added, "These are the four main responsibilities of any of the similar 152 U.S. counselts throughout the world," he said.

In the U. S. Department of State alone, more than 14,000 Americans are employed. Almost half of this number serve abroad; and are stationed in a 114 posts, counselts or embassies throughout the world.

"The foreign service is not a well - known organization because most people do not have the opportunity to come in contact with it. However, I am glad to speak about my job. The foreign service represents the American people and government.

Provides Understanding

"Also, it is an opportunity to provide more understanding between the U. S. and other countries. Kind of a 'people to people' contact which occupies a large place in the development of mutual understanding," Shoesmith said.

Presently there are over 1 million American people abroad including military and civilian personnel.

He explained that since 1945 there has been a great increase in the number of Japanese seeking more understanding about the U. S.

Interest In U.S. Civil Rights

"Many Japanese are interested in the U. S. Foreign Trade Policy and how it will affect them as businessmen. There is also great current interest in the stand and outcome of the U.S. Civil Rights issue, and how changes in political parties will affect them," he said.

Mrs. Shoesmith said that some of the most frequent questions asked about the Americans are: Are all Americans rich? And, of course, a favorite of the ladies is what type of home life is there? What is the kitchen like? How many rooms?

Many of these questions are answered on a people to people basis through a 'sister city relationship.' This is a plan whereby an American city, in this case, Oakland, Calif., and Fukuoka, Japan, exchange students.

"This exchange of ideas, cultures, and knowledge does a great deal towards creating understanding and better relationships between countries," Shoesmith said.

"In every respect," he went on, "Japan is a modern, industrial nation. It is the only modern, industrial nation in Asia today. The credit for this development belongs to the Japanese people. It was their labor force which exceeds 4 million people, and has ties with the AF of L and CIO, and the Japanese government that accomplished this," he said.

"The U.S. has given encouragement, help and aid to accomplish this since the end of World War II. This accounts for many of the modern factories and plants in Japan which are parallel with those in the U.S.," he added.

Self Supporting

"But this is important to the U.S. because Japan is now able to help other countries attain political and economic stability. Japan is a good example of economic rehabilitation, since it has passed its pre war peek in 1952. Also, this will aid other countries in doing the same," he said.

"I wouldn't say all of it, but much of Japan's vigorous economy and hard working labor force was instituted with the Marshall plan in Europe and the bi-lateral plan in the South Asian countries. The plan did not clear everything away; but it did remove some of the more obvious obstacles," he said.

"Also, Japan probably knows more about rice and its production than any other country in the world. They are also ready, willing and able to give assistance to other countries which are seeking development aid.

"Great industrial strides were made during the occupation of Japan. General Douglas MacArthur laid the foundations for much of the economic advance — cleared away many of the pre war obstacles — opened new channels — it was a so-called take off of the economy," he said.

It was explained that many Japanese felt that U. S. Foreign Aid emphasied military aid rather than economic growth and development. However, the contrary is true. Here, then is where the human understanding and exchange of ideas between persons and families comes into being and bears fruit.

Martha H. Shoesmith, 40, his wife, and their son, Thomas M., 9, and daughter Jo, 6, accompanied them in Japan. The children attend a U.S. Air Force School at a nearby base in Japan.

Shoesmith, a career Foreign Service Officer, is a graduate of Stroudsburg High School, and of the University of Pennsylvania. He earned his Master's degree at Harvard University.

Also, he served in the United States Army overseas as a first lieutenant during World War II; then joined the Department of State in 1951. He speaks Japanese and has been assigend to Hong Kong, Macao, and Korea.

FOREIGN SERVICE OFFICER ON LEAVE—Thomas P. Shoesmith and his wife Martha relax at the home of his father the Rev. Thomas Shoesmith of 309 N. 7th St., Stroudsburg. They have recently returned home for a leave and will return in October to Fukuoka, Japan at the counsel where he is stationed.

DR Basin Budget Criticized

Special To Daily Record

PHILADELPHIA — The executive director of the Water Resources Assn. of the Delaware River Basin (WRA/DRB) yesterday criticized the Delaware River Basin Commission's 1965 budget of $580,000 as being too vague.

Frank Dressler said, at public hearings on the budget in Philadelphia, "it is difficult for the public to understand the commission's budget because of the 'continuous nature' of the commission's planning programs".

He said the "synopisized" budget that is distributed to the public "creates confusion rather than understanding. The confusion is caused because progress on the planning program is not spelled out," Dressler caintained.

The executive secretary of the tri-state organization said the commission does not provide funds for the creation and use of citizen advisory committees.

Dressler made these suggestions for future budgets:

1. That the commission make detailed copies of the budget available to all interested parties for a fee that will cover reproduction costs.

2. The commission should develop and maintain a systematic and continuous public information program.

3. That the commission utilize citizen advisory committees in the development of its programs.

Youth Nominated For FFA Award

Larry Altemose

By Tom Wilson
West End-State Belt Reporter

KUNKLETOWN — Larry Altemose, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira F. Altemose of Kunkletown, RD 2, has been recommended for the Future Farmers of America's highest honor, the "American Farmer" degree.

Clifford Stroud, vocational agriculture instructor at Pleasant Valley High School, said Larry is one of ten Pennsylvania FFA members to be recommended for the degree at the 37th annual FFA national convention to be held in Kansas City October 14 to 16.

Exceptional Records

Stroud said an FFA member must have an exceptional record in farming, leadership and scholarship to qualify for the American Farmer degree.

The degree is limited to FFA boys who have been out of high school at least one year, are showing evidence of becoming successful farmers, and have productively invested at least $1,500 earned through farming, Stroud said.

He added state associations of FFA are limited to one American Farmer nominee for each 1,000 members.

1961 Graduate

Altemose is a 1961 graduate of Pleasant Valley High School. He did not have a dairy project until his sophomre year in high school, but owned 22 animals by graduation, and owns 30 now.

He also has 25 sheep and 75 acres of rented land in wheat, oats, corn, and hay, and plans to buy a 100-acre farm.

Larry, with his father and brother William, who won the American Farmer degree in 1961, jointly operate three groups of land; the home farm and two groups of rented land. Each son rents one farm.

Stroud said the farm is an "outstanding enterprise," and characterized by high production, both of forage and milk.

In a 305-day test, the combined herd averaged 17,150 pounds of milk and 619 pounds of butterfat, he said.

FFA Officer

While in school, Larry was an FFA chapter officer for three years, an area officer for one year, and won five first prizes for small grains at the state farm show.

He was a member of the FFA state tractor driving team and took first honors in the state in the farm accounts project contest. The young farmer also won $645 in awards at fairs from 1957 to 1963.

Last year, Larry was one the Pennsylvania farm members of the People-to-People Goodwill Tour of Europe.

Another area youth, Richard D. Lieberman, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood K. Lieberman of Pen Argyl, RD 1, was also nominated. He is a 1961 graduate of the Pen Argyl Area Joint High School.

Cooler Weather Retards Crops

HARRISBURG (AP) — Cool weather continued to retard crop development, while showers hampered field work on Pennsylvania farms last week, the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service said Tuesday.

Low temperatures slowed the ripening of peaches and tomatoes and the growth of corn, the service reported in its weekly crop and weather summary.

Showers brought little relief to extremely dry northeastern and eastern counties where corn is making poor progress and hay fields and pastures are short. In the driest of these areas "some fields of late corn are beyond help," the service commented.

Potato growers in eastern counties were irrigating their crops to maintain growth and sizing.

The first newspaper beyond the Appalachians was the "Pittsburgh Gazette" founded in 1786 by John Scull and Joseph Hall.

Red Cross Tent Ready At Fair

GILBERT — There is a little known but very important tent at the West End Fair this year, as it is every year.

It is a first aid station sponsored by the Red Cross. The station can take care of anything from scratched knees to delivering babies, according to Mrs. Henry J. LaBar of Delaware Water Gap, who is a Red Cross volunteer.

Also working in the tent is Mrs. Frank Edinger, a registered nurse from Stroudsburg.

Barking Dogs

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — A University of Colorado student complained to the police his college education is going to the dogs. Dogs running loose on the campus barked so loudly, he said, it upset his concentration and caused him to fail two examinations.

Forest Service Blames Carlessness For Fires

GILBERT — Pennsylvania service forester J. Kintz reported that there have been 55 fires in the Delaware district so far this year. The district is composed of Pike, Monroe and Northampton Counties.

Kintz, who was at the forestry department exhibit set up at the West End Fair, was accompanied by forest inspector William Raish.

The two woods experts said the state has seven fire towers in the district, mainly near state forest lands.

They reported that the forest service had fought two fires on Monday, and extinguished both. They said that the drought not only causes more fires, but that they burn deeply into flammable humus.

The only way they may be put out is to bulldoze a ditch around the conflagration, they explained. The operation takes at least two hours.

Carelessness

Carelessness was listed as the major cause of woods burning. The experts said that cigarettes are the biggest reason for fires, but added that railroads come second.

Modern diesel engine stacks get a heavy carbon deposit inside which ignites and is belched out when the train pulls a heavy grade. They added that the railroad companies are cooperating to eliminate the hazard.

The fabled cause of forest fires, lightning, happens "once in a blue moon," Raish said.

The pair urged everyone to be extremely careful with outdoors flame of any kind in order to cut down on fire hazards during this summer's drought conditions.

One in 20 Americans suffers from hayfever.

Two 4-H Boys Only Entries In Cattle Division

GILBERT — Winners for division one dairy and beef cattle were few.

Two 4-H members were only entrants in the division. They were Donald Switzgable of Brodheadsville, who won the baby beef, under 1,000 pounds class; and Glenn Martin of Saylorsburg, RD 1, who won the baby beef, over 1,000 pounds class.

Clair Whitmore Garners Top Prizes In Horse Show

GILBERT — Clair Whitmore riding his horse Raindrop, won six first place trophies and three ribbons at the sixth annual 4-H Horse and Pony Show at the West End Fair yesterday. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Whitmore of Stroudsburg, RD 5.

The show was slowed down somewhat due to early afternoon showers. John Withrow, county extension agent, said the quality of horsemanship seen in the show wasn't affected by the rain.

Aged 10 to 21

The boys and girls, aged 10 to 21, who form the three 4-H Horse and Pony Clubs in Monroe County were undaunted as they put their animals through their paces.

One of the most eye-catching contests in the show was the apple bobbing contest. In this contest the horse and rider must race to a tub of water at one end of the horse arena. Upon reaching the tub, the rider dismounts and must grab an apple floating in the tub with his teeth without using his hands.

The rider then remounts and races to the finish line, still holding the apple in his teeth. The winner is the rider who completes the circuit in the shortest time.

Hearty Laugh

The crowd watching the show had a hearty laugh when Margie Walter's horse decided to have a drink from the tub after Margie got her apple.

Winners of the 16 classes in the show, in the order they finished, are:

Farm Tempers Flare In Dispute

CORNING, Iowa (AP)—Livestock prices and farmers' tempers rose sharply Monday as National Farmers Organization members continued holding meat animals from market.

The apparent shortage of livestock for slaughter brought a threat of higher retail prices for meat in some parts of the nation this weekend.

Hog prices paid to farmers jumped as much as $2 a hundredweight in this fourth day of the NFO action. Beef cattle went for $1-1.50 a hundred more than late last week. Prices were at their highest level in more than a year.

Livestock receipts were down at principal markets and some meat packers were laying off employes because of the shortage.

The first news cartoon of "Uncle Same" appeared in the New York Lantern, a comic weekly, on March 13, 1852.

All men are created equal—and endowed by their creator with an insatiable urge to become otherwise.

Farm's Future Predicted By Experts At West End

GILBERT — Pleasant Valley Joint High School vocational agriculture teacher Clifford Stroud said at the West End Fair yesterday that the future of agriculture in Monroe County lies in the part-time family farm.

Charles Hogan Jr., county extension agent agreed.

Both men said that the number of farms in the county is decreasing. Hogan added that at the same time many farms are becoming larger in size.

The assistant county agent added that the old saw, "Agriculture is the only industry that produces so much it has put itself out of business", has more than a litle truth in it.

Prediction

The result, both men concluded, is that farming is less of a full-time paying proposition than it used to be. Their prediction is that the Monroe County farmer will increasingly grow a garden for himself, raise sheep or beef cattle, and work a a regular job in industry or elsewhere.

Stroud said that farming on this scale is a paying proposition since produce will take care of food, and pay rent and taxes. The part-time farmer thus has his job salary solely for other expenses.

Farm Service Jobs

At the same time, he said, the number of agricultural service jobs has increased tremendously. Hogan pointed out that there are seven people serving farmers for every man in the field. He said, 43 percent of the labor force in Pennsylvania make their full salary from some form of farm or farm-related work.

Stroud said that while vocational instruction in agriculture, offered only by the Pleasant Valley jointure, covers poultry, dairying, livestock, field crops, bees, farm shop, management, marketing and career planning, he is continually stressing the importance of related fields for agriculturally oriented youths.

Allied Occupations

Allied occupations listed by the agriculture instructor include feed, dairy industry, teaching, fertilizing, cooperative management, county agent work, farm economics, and research. For the Pennsylvania student, the major educational institution, Stroud added, is Pennsylvania State University.

Hogan, who is employed by the university, said that last year there were some 5,000 jobs waiting for the 1,500 agricultural graduates.

In addition, Stroud and the county agent said that Monroe County, while not 100 percent agricultural, ranks first among dairying counties in butterfat production, and second in overall production.

"The big need in the county," according to Stroud, "is for improved management and marketing, not increased production."

The pair, in summing up their discussion, saw a good future for farming here, but envisioned sweeping changes in the structure of county agriculture.

A. L. Storm

Fair Director Reminisces

GILBERT — A. L. Storm, West End Fair director from Hamilton Township, said yesterday he has been a director of the fair for 25 years.

He said there has been a lot of improvement in the fair in those years. The fair used to run just one day, and now it runs for three days.

He also reminisced. There were nothing but farm horses at the fair 25 years ago, and now they have a saddle horse show, he said.

But he said, "Farming was better when we plowed with a team of horses. I don't know of a plow team left in Monroe County.

Storm said he believed farm products today are about the same quality as they were in the past. "But I haven't farmed in 15 years, and things have changed a lot in that time," he added.

He said things have been tough for the area farmers due to a three-year drought. "If we don't get some rain soon, it's going to be a lot tougher, too," he said.

Storm was born in Snydersville in 1887 and has been a farmer most of his life.

"Farm life is the nicest life of all when you are able to do it," he stated.

He also said he has been receiving The Daily Record ever since he bought his farm in 1912. "Of course the paper wasn't called that then, the name has been changed several times since 1912," he said.

He remembered when he went once a week, rain or shine, to Snydersville to pick up the paper.

Greenzweig At Fair Mike For Second Year

GILBERT — Four years ago F. A. Greenzweig operated the loud speaker system at the West End Fair.

Although it wasn't planned, he is operating it again this year.

Greenzweig brought two booths, a ball game and a balloon dart stand, from Hollywood, Fla., to the fair.

When Paul Everett, fair president, asked him to take over the loud speaker system, Greenzweig said he would be glad to help out.

Greenzweig has been coming to the fair since 1935. He hasn't always operated booths at the fair, however. He was born in Kunkletown, and lived in Monroe and Northampton Counties for 35 years.

He was in the Northampton County sheriff's office for 15 years and owned a restaurant in Wind Gap.

He then moved to Florida, where he owns a motel and enters his stands in various fairs in the South. But he brings his stands back to the West End Fair every year.

"Although I'm working when I'm here, it's still like a vacation for me," he said.

"This looks like it will be the biggest year in the fair's history," he stated.

Hospital Aides Raise Money

GILBERT — One of the first booths seen upon entering the West End Fair grounds is that of the Anna Logan Auxiliary of the Monroe County General Hospital.

The ladies in the booth will be selling hot dogs, hamburgers, pizza pies, cakes, cookies, lemon sticks, coffee, milk and soda. The proceeds will go to the General Hospital fund.

Mrs. Marie Mitchell, one of the ladies in charge of the booth, said two paintings have been donated to the auxiliary by Peter Heiden and Mrs. Gladys Shiffer.

She said the booth is one of the many projects sponsored by the auxiliary. They also sponsor two card parties a year; birthday and anniversary calendars; booths at other area fairs; and this year they sponsored the Tony Lema golf exhibition at Glenbrook Country Club.

Chairman of the auxiliary is Mrs. Walter McClellan. Other ladies in charge of the booth are Mrs. David Katz, Mrs. Marion Stofflet, Mrs. Ann Meixell, Mrs. Howard Keiper, Mrs. Kathryn Wellington, Mrs. Clair Coleman, Mrs. Virginia Tebbs, Mrs. Jane Gavin, Mrs. Horace Butler, Mrs. Jeanette Flagler, Mrs. Henrietta Baldwin, and Mrs. Thomas Metzgar.

Mrs. Metzgar is also in charge of donations for the hospital fund.

Relaxing

WINCHESTER, Ky. (AP) — When a new state park lodge was opened, former Gov. Bert Combs was among the speakers at the dedication.

His opening statement was a tacit summary of life away from the spotlight.

"One great advantage of being a private citizen again," he remarked, "is that now nobody expects me to say something brilliant or witty every time I open my mouth."

Opportune Time For NFO Drive

By OVID A. MARTIN
AssociatedPress Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Farmers Organization chose a good time for staging its drive to get farmers to withhold cattle, hogs, lambs and sheep from markets now to force higher prices.

Economic factors have indicated for some time that there would be a price upturn for the meat animals late this summer and fall.

The withholding program could—depending on the degree of its success—accentuate the expected price advances. But doubtless controversy will arise among farm groups as to whether the withholding program or the economic factors were the major contributors to price improvements.

It is assumed, of course, that NFO leaders will claim major credit.

WHAT KIND?

Buster Busts Up Yanks For Nats

NEW YORK (AP) — Lester (Buster) Narum, with only one victory to his credit in more than two months, chilled the New York bats Wednesday with a stunning five-hitter for a 2-0 Washington triumph that short-circuited the Yankees' drive to overtake the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles.

Right-hander Mel Stottlemyre, previously unbeaten rookie sensation, permitted only four Senator hits himself but had the misfortune of allowing half of the total in the fifth inning.

Those pair of hits, a double by Mike Brumley and a single by Don Zimmer, together with a rare misplay by catcher Elston Howard, paved the way for both Washington runs. They led to Narum's ninth victory against 10 defeats, and only his second triumph since June 21.

The loss was the first in the majors for the 22-year-old Stottlemyre, who had beaten Chicago, Baltimore and Boston in three successive starts since his promotion from Richmond two weeks ago.

WBA's Ending Urged At Convo

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — World Boxing Association President Ed Lassman expects more than his share of problems this week but one he doesn't expect is a proposal that the World Boxing Association be abolished.

Rumors have been flying around the convention site that one delegate would ask such a move with a return to the old National Boxing Association a solution.

Misunderstood

"I've heard that, too," said Lassman. "I had quite a chat with the gentleman involved. He's been completely misunderstood.

"What the delegate really wants is to establish a U.S. rating like the ones conducted in many other countries. The WBA, of course, ranks fighters the world over.

"I'll no longer be president when such a decision is made but I'll recommend such a move. I'll suggest the seven U.S. members of the rating committee (there are 15 in all) be held responsible for such rankings."

Expects Problems

Lassman admitted he does expect numerous problems before the convention ends Saturday night. The first business sessions are scheduled for Thursday.

Chief among these will be pleas expected from representatives of Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston for sanction of their upcoming championship fight.

These representatives are expected to meet with the WBA executive committee Thursday afternoon. There is a possiblity that Clay may be in attendance.

Japan, Staten Is., Reach L. L Semis

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Tachikawa City, Japan, and Staten Island N. Y., two newcomers to the Little League World Series, advanced to the semifinals of the 18th annual tournament Wednesday.

Tachikawa City edged Valleyfield, Quebec, Canada, 1-0, and Staten Island eliminated Wiesbaden, Germany, 8-1, to complete first round play.

The winners will meet in the semifinals Thursday. The other semifinal game will match Mobile, Ala., and Monterrey, Mex., which won first round victories Tuesday.

Tachikawa came out on the long end of a tight pitchers' duel that saw the winning run cross the plate on a bases loaded walk in the sixth and final inning.

Winning pitcher Nagatoshi Shimizu allowed three hits and struck out 10 without walking any batters. Valleyfield, making its fourth appearance here in six years, failed to advance a runner past second base.

Detroit Tops Boston, 4-1

BOSTON (AP) — Dave Wickersham posted his 16th victory with a five-hitter while Don Demeter and Jerry Lumpe hit homers, leading Detroit to a 4-1 victory over Boston Wednesday night.

Wickersham, who has lost nine games, was locked in a scoreless duel with Boston's Bob Heffner until the sixth when Demeter triggered a two-run rally with a towering shot that cleared the screen atop the left field wall.

Carling Go-Round Worth $200,000

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — Temporary slumps by Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus make a virtual free-for-all of the $200,000 Carling World Championship Golf Tournament, starting Thursday over the Oakland Hills Course.

Choking Price

"I think I have found my choking price," commented blond Bruce Crampton of Australia, scanning the impressive prize list— $35,000 for the winner, $17,000 for the runner-up, and $1,000 and over to the top 36 finishers.

There has never been a richer golf tournament. Players have stocked up on tranquilizer pills for the next four days.

Crampton is one of 48 players from 13 foreign countries who will battle 107 leading American contestants for the pile of gold.

The favorite, because he is brimming with confidence and at the peak of his game, is Ken Venturi, the National Open champion and comebacker of the year. He won the American Golf Classic last weekend and has been the hottest player in pre-tournament practice rounds over this 6,907-yard, par 70 layout on the outskirts of Detroit.

Pouring Them In

"Ken is really pouring those shots in there," said Palmer, the Masters titleholder. "He is so sure of himself now he doesn't think he can miss a shot."

Both Palmer and Nicklaus have pulled up short in the mid-summer hot weather tournaments, finishing high but failing to dominate the tour as expected.

Phils Top Braves On Four Homers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The National League-leading Philadelphia Phillies backed up Chris Short's tight pitching with a barrage of four home runs Wednesday and salvaged the finale of three-game series with the Milwaukee Braves, 6-1.

Gus Triandos hit two homers and Ruben Amaro and Tony Gonzalez one each as Short registered his 14th victory.

76'ers Purchase Steve Courtin

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers of the National Basketball Association announced Wednesday the purchase of Steve Courtin, former St. Joseph of Philadelphia star, from the Cincinnati Royals.

The 6-foot-2 Courtin scored 579 points last season for a St. Joseph record.

Irish Golf Professional Praises Tamiment Layout

TAMIMENT — The Tamiment golf course, played from the blue markers, 7,110-yards for a par 72, is a tough test for any professional golfer, touring pro or club pro. That's the opinion voiced by Jack Caffrey, famous Irish professional and golf architect from Dublin, Ireland.

Caffrey visited Tamiment this past week with Mike Devitt, of Philadelphia, director of the Danny Kaye tournament, which will be played at that resort Sept. 8, 9 and 10.

"It is truly amazing" said Caffrey, "that such an excellent course could be carved out of a mountain. Those lush greens," he said, as he inspected the large rolling carpets at each hole, "would be a credit to any course in the world, and I know a number of clubs in the British Isles that would be happy to have such accommodations. And," he added, "your fairways are extraordinarily wide, although well trapped. This is a fine piece of golf architecture and a credit to the ability of Robert Trent Jones, who designed the course. He outdid himself on this one."

Caffrey is touring this country and Canada, inspecting nationally famous courses in these countries and surveying playing habits of North American golfers.

"A man can never know too much about golf, and particularly golf courses," said the Irish expert.

Tamiment, since it was opened for play some 12 years ago, has proven a real test for all types of golfers. Only once has a pro bettered par in tournament play from the blue markers. Dick Mullen, playing out of Baltimore last year, had a 2-under par 70 in one of his rounds in the Kaye tournament.

There will be a lot of fine pros in this year's tournament. Mullen will be back playing with one of the two teams from Green Valley C.C., Lafayette Hill, Pa. George Griffin Jr., former Philadelphia District and Pennsylvania Open champion, whose team won the Kaye event several years ago, will head the second Green Valley team.

A trio of pros from the Northern New York area, Bob Hill, Brockville; Paul Kern, Windsor; and Lee Armstrong, Yonkers, have entered teams this year. Hill and Kern hit the tournament trail quite often. Armstrong is a New York State P.G.A. champion.

Sunny Crest Pro

Hill recently took over as pro at the Sunny Crest C.C., Brockville. Kern has been a fixture at the Windsor Golf Club, and Armstrong is stationed at Hudson River C.C., Yonkers.

Henry McQuiston, of Bala C.C., out of the Philadelphia District, who won the pro 36-hole event in the Kaye tournament last year, will be back with the same lineup that won the 1963 All-Points team trophy.

Some of the other outstanding pros in the field include Joe Vaeth, Goose Creek, C.C., Leesburg, Virginia, Mid-Atlantic P.G.A. champion; Bill Bassler, Rolling Road C.C., Baltimore; George Bird, Willow Oaks C.C., Richmond, Va.; Bob Ross, North Hills C.C., Phila., and Willie Palumbo, one of the country's longest drivers, from Green Hill C.C., Wilmington, Del.

There will be a total of 12 Pennsylvania teams in the field of 40 clubs represented in this year's tournament. This includes Glen Brook C.C. of Stroudsburg, the only local club other than Vince Yanovitch's Tamiment team.

Billie Boone, pro at Country Club of Northampton County, Easton, has two teams entered. Country Club of Scranton, which has participated in all five previous Kaye tournaments, again fields a team.

Blue Mt. Golf Title Tourney Sun.

SAYLORSBURG — Jim Von Brock and Cliff Shoemaker will battle Sunday for the championship of Blue Mt. Golf Course, and Dolly Reinhart and Stephanie Shoemaker will vie for the women's title.

The men's tourney will be played over 36 holes and the women's championship will be 27 holes.

Von Brock defeated Stan Beahm in the semi-finals, 3 and 2, and Shoemaker defeated Paul Kocher, 3 and 2.

In the first flight of the semis, Eddie Dech defeated Gene Schiavone, 5 and 4, and Harold Weber defeated Dwayne Schweitzer, 1-up in 20 holes.

Marlyn Weidner defeated Harry Risser, 5 and 4, in the second flight, and Bob Gussett defeated Glenn Oren, 1-up.

Dolly Reinhart advanced to the finals by defeating Lorrayne Parry, 1-up in the semis, while Stephanie Shoemaker defeated Stella Dech, 3 and 2.

'A Thousand Clowns' Has Meaning With Laughs

By Richard Manheim
Stroud Union French Teacher

MOUNTAINHOME — Rowena Stevens' presentation of "A Thousand Clowns" at the Pocono Playhouse this week is not quite a thousand clowns' worth of mirth, but very nearly so!

Darren McGavin as star and director has caught this bouncing ball-farce by the horns and had made an enjoyable evening's worth of entertainment.

McGavin, whose stage stumblings are a bit disconcerting at the onset, but later prove to be part of the role of a devil-may-care raconteur, portrays his part convincingly.

He soon becomes the blade who understands the world all too well. He has some lines in Act II, Scene 1 which seemed to escape the audience. This is a shame, since this is far from meaningless rhetoric — it is the cogency of the play.

Number One Son

The central figure in the play is actually Nick Burns (played by York McGavin, eldest son of the star) who finds himself in the center of squabbling between the Child Welfare Board (finks, in this case — and possible all cases) and Uncle Murray (McGavin, Sr.).

Nick is to be taken away from this hip household because Uncle Murray is "without visible means of support" and does not live "a normal life." He is a recently-deposed writer for a TV children's spot — "Chuckles, the Chipmunk".

Murray's brother is a TV executive (or something) and tries to inveigle Murray to come back to the "solid ground" and make a living by writing inane drivel for a TV kid nut-symbol.

Murray wants none of this. He likes his apartment "comfortable" and the freedom that goes with irresponsibility.

Fortunately for him, (and more so, for the fate of the play) he's already met the female end of the Child Welfare Board — which has already judged him incapable of maintaining the household for this obviously precocious 12 year old.

Don't Tread On Me

Co-star Patrick McVey, pulls in a less convincing role. He is most successful when he is standing alone without hands to worry about. In physical contact he falls down: alone he stands well, but together he falls (what a marvelous voice he has, though).

The two most convincing roles are carried out by Roy Shuman and Patricia Sales. Shuman characterized one of the most disgusting personalities since that portrayed by Patty McCormick in "The Bad Seed."

"Chuckles the Chipmunk" wasn't evil but was a beautifully carried-out bilge-barf sermon, aimed for the consumption of toddlers or pre-adults.

Miss Sales' portrayal of the femme-fatale - cum-juvenenalia-cum-laude (the psyched-up psychologist) won the favor of the audience.

The sob-scene after the "interview" with Murray and Nick was well worth a minor Oscar.

Carlton Colyer did an excellent job of acting the priss he was supposed to be.

'Eager Gesture'

Now to the play itself. True, under the hand of the producer and director, "A Thousand Clowns" has turned into a very eager gesture. It is a worthy success.

But, how come the majority of the audience (at time of reviewing) sat in indolence at the most provocative pronouncements from the stage, yet gigled in delight at the most trivial slapstickish posture or postulate?

Yes, this is a farce, but there are some highly heady lines regarding social satire.

This reviewer and his wife laughed alone much too often. But, see for yourself. "A Thousand Clowns" has laughs. Go see it. It's worth it.

The adage has it: "Into every life a drop of rain may fall." The reviewer says (and this play avows): "Into every drop of rain a bit of life must fall." Listen carefully to "A Thousand Clowns." You will hear this.

PUBLIC REPORT

by the VALUE RATER

NUMBER 3

The folowing automobiles were picked at random from our used car lot and driven with these results:

NO. 1—1963 OLDSMOBILE
STARFIRE SPORTS HARDTOP
This is the Olds idea of a sports model, and if you're looking for a star attraction buy it! It's Midnight blue with a decor side stripe and includes narrow whitewalls. The interior is lavish lighter blue foam padded vinyl. For action it carries big V-8 power, automatic shift but on the floor, it's got bucket seats, seat belts and even a tach on the driveshaft. Of course it also has standards like radio, heater, and everything else that's Olds quality. Value rated at . . .
ONLY $3195

NO. 2—1963 OLDSMOBILE F-85
2-DOOR SEDAN
This is the answer to someone's problem of an economical car with plenty of power. It's got a V-8 engine with automatic transmission, radio and heater. You can't mistake it for anything but Oldsmobile, yet it's built trimmer—it's easy to park. The color is in good taste—light jade green metallic; the interior blended with vinyl matches the exterior. It's a one-owner like the Olds across and it's really like a brand new one. Value rated at . . .
ONLY $2095

NO. 3—'61 MERCURY Monterey
2-DOOR SPORT HARDTOP
Here's a real good looking model. The finish is two-tone black bottom with a white top, and the interior is classic red. This is Mercury's top of the line model, and Warren went over it with the idea of finesse in the body shop. It only needed minor spot painting—but Warren gave it the treatment; baking the painted spots in his new bake-on-paint room. Incidentally, Warren does this now to all his cars that need painting—it's a great paint job. The Merc also has radio, heater, power-steering, and automatic transmission—it's also a one-owner car. Value rated at . . .
ONLY $1395

NO. 4—'60 CHRYSLER Windsor
4-DOOR SEDAN
Anybody looking for massive luxury at a minimum investment? Here's Chrysler's plush Windsor model. Warren just gave this 4-door luxury sedan a new coat of baked-on paint; so it looks brand new. The forest green color coupled with Chrysler's impressive honeycombed grille, and generous portions of chrome all add up to a lot of car for not too much money. It's got V-8 power, automatic transmission, radio, heater, and other extras, plus room enough for all the kids from the kindergarten at the Arlington Heights school. Value rated at . . .
ONLY $995

Just Between Us——

by Bobby Westbrook

I can hardly wait for the day when they have visual telephones. Or maybe they're more exciting the way they are with the imagination of the listener supplying the details of what must be happening on the other end.

I knew what was happening at the Jay Martins' house the other night when in the midst of a conversation with Elaine all sorts of commotion broke out. "It's a bat in the house," Elaine kindly explained before she hung up to join the chase.

However, many times it's just a great crash or children crying or people fighting or the dog going crazy about something while the caller goes calmly on giving me the notice for a meeting or the story of a birthday party or something while I wonder whether somebody's being murdered, the house is on fire or has just been hit by a truck.

In the course of a week, I get several hundred telephone calls I suppose, most of them of a routine nature, but a long distance call never fails to fill me with suspense. Although there's usually a very ordinary sequel.

Like the telephone call from the man with a British sounding accent who wanted to know if I was an authority on the history of Cherry Valley. Seems he was trying to trace the author of a series of historical articles in 1956 in the Record. Reluctantly I had to admit I wasn't either the authority or the author and suggested Mr. and Mrs. Horace Walters.

And I really perked up my ears at the long distance call with the announcement "This is NBC calling." I don't know exactly what NBC was going to ask me to do, but as it turned out the call was about whether or not I'd received the material about Susan Kintner's wedding this coming weekend which is exciting but also in the regular routine.

the telephone as if something the telephone a sif something very special might happen any day. And so it might if it happens to be you calling. But a visual phone would spoil a lot of the suspense.

BONNIE M. STRUNK who won the title of Little Miss Coast Guard at the Coast Guard Headquarters Enlisted Men's Social Club picnic held at Washington Radio Station, Alexandria, Va. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Strunk, White Heron Lake.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

The other afternoon, after Marcia DeRocco and Fumi Komatsu had finished hanging Fumi's one man show of original wood block prints in our Keystone Room, we settled down around a card table and began a tape recording for the following morning's radio program. At first, it wasn't too successful. Store employees, who did not know we were recording in the room, came through laughing and talking, and the outside noise was terrific.

At last, I had Marcia write a note on the back of my notes about Fumi and hang it upon the curtain over the door. That was a mistake! When I began my interview once again and tried to introduce Fumi, I discovered that my memory played tricks upon me. Instead of calling her Miss Komatsu, which means Pretty Little Pine Tree, I garbled the letters and called her something which means "Big Horse." When Marcia frantically waved me into silence, and a laughing Fumi told me what I had done, the three of us were convulsed with laughter.

Naturally, I apologized . . . but, the following morning I read my column about Fumi and discovered another error. This time, a linotype one. I had written that Fumi is pronounced "Foo-me." It appeared as "Fee-me." Now I am almost afraid to meet the charming little Japanese lady again. WHAT, I wonder, did I call her THIS time? If I miss the tea we are giving for her here in our Keystone room Friday afternoon, it's because I'm ashamed to show my face. In which case, just look for me in the nearest waste basket.

Some people are so lucky! Did I mention that Doris Otto of our Credit Office, and Mardee Albert of Dresses, are among those who joined Edna Brockman and her other clients on our Travel Bureau's excursion to Corning and Cooperstown this week? And did you know that, come Friday, Margaret Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Wyckoff, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyckoff and Cora Albertson, of our Lingerie Department, will sail for Ireland? Just think of it . . . six restful days by boat going . . . six restful days returning . . . and six exciting days of sight-seeing while there! I do hope one of them sees fit to bring me at least a TINY piece of the blarney stone. Or a leprechaun.

Did I remember to tell you there are some bargains right now in our Cosmetic Department? DuBarry's Moisture Petals, so wonderful for keeping the skin fine and supple, are 3.00 for a limited time. The regular price is 5.00 . . . and Esther Ainspac tells me we have a new shipment of natural bristle hair brushes for only 1.98. These are the same kind that went so rapidly when we stocked them previously—very excellent for the money . . . And have I mentioned that Dottie Oliver of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society, stopped me the other day to tell me she is delighted with Super Nail by Revlon and thinks all women who have soft or brittle nails should know about it? A tiny bottle lasts forever and is worth its weight in gold, she says. The retail price is 3.00. Super Nail toughens nails so miraculously they grow long and beautiful in no time.

Oh, yes . . . I've a note from Anna Haller to the effect that we have just received some new coffee tables in our International Gift Center. Oval, these have folding walnut legs and perfectly beautiful piecrust-edged brass tops. There are two sizes—36" and 40" priced at 65.00 and 75.00, respectively.

* * *

And have you shopped the 88c table in our Notions Department? Everything's there! Laundry bags . . . garment bags . . . hair-styling kits for travel . .. shaving kits . . . oven mitts and potholders . . . aprons . . . round satin boxes (just right for storing your chignon when it's not in use) . . . and dozens of other things. It's fun, discovering these under-priced treasures.

Kunkletown RD Man Files $60,000 Suit

KUNKLETOWN — Eugene Le Van of Kunkletown, RD 1, a former Bethlehem Steel Co., pilot has filed suit in Northampton County Court claiming $60,000 from the steel company and the Call-Chronicle Newspapers, Inc., for damages to his reputation.

The suit, filed by Le Van alleges that he suffered great financial loss at the time of his dismissal as company pilot in September 1962 through statements made by company representatives and subsequently published in Allentown newspapers.

The action, filed by Le Van's counsel, Dean L. Foote, seeks "in excess" of" $40,000 from the company and the newspaper jointly in two counts, and asks "in excess of" $20,000 from the steel company in a third count.

The papers assert the steel company "participated in the release, dissemination and circulation of the nature and reasons for the termination and discharge" of Le Van.

He said the statements were intended to degrade, defame and maliciously malign him and to raise the false impression that he was not properly qualified for his employment.

Le Van stated his objection was to the statement his discharge occurred "for insubordination and creating dissension among the staff of the aviation division" of the steel firm. He says the statements were untrue.

The movie is based on a book written by Polly Adler and brought to the screen by Joseph E. Levine through Embassy Pictures. The story pulls no punches and reveals the human frailty on both sides of the law during this infamous period in American History.

Caesar Romero, plays the role of the notorious Lucky Luciano. Shelly Winters co-stars as Polly and Robert Taylor and Broderick Crawford enact other key parts.

Two Fires In West End, Pen Argyl

PEN ARGYL — A fire in the basement of Pen Argyl's Weona Park bathhouse this week caused considerable damage to the area around a doorway.

Members of the Lookout Volunteer Fire Co. were summoned at 12:45 p.m. The fire apparently started in two drums of garbage and a box stored near the doorway of the basement. The garbage was placed in the basement on Saturday.

Elwood Male, park manager, said he checked the area at noon before he went to lunch and found nothing amiss.

Booster lines were used to put out the fire.

Destroys Yule Trees

Fire of undertermined origin destroyed several acres of Christmas trees and other woodland yesterday on the Kunkletown, RD farm of Danny Yeich of Easton.

Volunteers of the Kunkletown Fire Co were called at 6 p.m. and remained at the farm until midnight. Firemen said it was difficult to extinguish smouldering stumps.

Mt. Pocono Rotary Hears 'Shop Talk

MT. POCONO—George Kahl, executive director of the Burnley Workshop of the Poconos and former deputy commander of the Tobyhanna Army Depot, last night described the operation of the workshop to members of the Mt. Pocono Rotary Club at a meeting in the Methodist Church.

Kahl told Rotarians, "A sheltered workshop is a place to employ handicapped people until they can place themselves in competitive employment."

He said the workshop is presently working under contracts from various county industries. "Today we have five contracts and employ 13 handicapped people," Kahl said.

Kahl pointed out the Pocono Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce has pledged to raise $50,000 for the continued operation of the workshop. He also said aid is received from various state and federal agencies, in addition to the county commissioners.

The Rotary Club finalized plans for its "Country Auction" to be held Sept. 5 at the new Mt. Pocono fire house.

Beer Supplies Are Drying Up

MOSCOW (AP) — There used to be a little place in Pushkin Square where you could buy beer, but they sell only milk there now.

It's almost as tough in Serov Street and just as bad in Zhadanov Street. Along these two drags there are only three places where you can buy the stuff.

For Moscow's beer supplies are drying up.

The paper Moskovskaya Pravda came up with this thirsty fact yesterday after a reporter made the equivalent of a pub crawl through the capital. He painted a pathetic picture.

"People are wandering around town looking for beer," he reported.

They go into cafes that should sell beer and they are told there is no beer. They get onto the end of a beer queue and then they are told: "It's no use staying in the queue, the beer's almost run out."

"Where is all the beer going?" the paper asked. "It's not being poured into the Moskva River."

There are two reasons for the shortage, the paper found:

Moscow's four breweries are not brewing enough and cafes and stores do not take all the supplies breweries offer to them.

For beer drinkers it is a sad story.

Moscow really needs 300 or 400 stores that stock beer, and beer portions if the thirst of the population is to be quenched, the paper declared.

"We need bars as well, places where you can meet friends and eat the food you see in cook books," it added.

Reckless Driving Charge Costs $15

CRESCO — Frank C. Larking, of Sebring, Fla., paid a $10 fine and $5 costs on a charge of reckless driving recently before Justice of the Peace Halstead Ellison of Cresco.

Sebring pleaded guilty to the charge which stems from an accident on Tuesday, August 18 when his car collided with the rear of a hay wagon. State Police at Mt. Pocono investigated.

The average life span of the alcoholic is some 12 years shorter than that of the nonalcoholic.

Eligibility For '65 Wheat Loans, Certificates Listed

STROUDSBURG — Producers will be able to qualify for wheat loans and marketing certificates by planting within the 1965 farm wheat allotment and meeting certain other provisions of the 1965 wheat program, A. W. Martin, chairman, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation County Committee, said yesterday.

Growers who want to earn diversion payments, he added, will also need to reduce their wheat acreage at least 10 percent below the allotment and devote those acres to an approved conserving use.

The loans will be at a national average of $1.25 per bushel, available on the farm's entire wheat production except any excess wheat. Domestic certificates will be valued at 75 cents per bushel (on as much as 45 percent of the allotment's normal production) and export certificates will be valued at 30 cents a bushel (on as much as 35 percent of the allotment's normal production).

He pointed out that the 1965 wheat program offers growers a number of options which were not available in 1964 — options which provide growers with opportunities to improve their wheat income.

For instance, the 1965 program offers an opportunity to growers in high-risk areas to overplant their wheat allotment as insurance against crop failure and still qualify for certificates and for loans on all but the "excess" wheat provided the excess is stored under bond.

Martin listed the following general steps for participation in qualifying for wheat price-support loans and for marketing certificates in 1965:

1. Sign up to take part in the program. The signup in winter-wheat areas extends from August 24 through October 1.

2. Have an acreage of wheat no larger than your farm allotment unless you plan to use the storage-under-bond provision or the substitution privilege.

3. Keep within the wheat allotment or permitted acreage for any other farm in which you have an interest. (Excess wheat from other farms may be stored under bond.)

4. Keep within all other allotments established for the participating farm. (Feed grains are not considered allotment crops, but there is a permitted acreage for feed grains if you take part in the feed grain program.)

5. Add to the farm's conservation base an acreage of cropland devoted to approved conservation uses equal to 11.11 percent of the farm's wheat allotment. (There will be no diversion payment on this 11.11 percent acreage. Provision is made for diverting additional acreage for payment.)

6. Meet other overall provisions of the program, such as preventing weed growth and not harvesting or grazing diverted acreage unless approved by the ASC County Committee.

Growers who are interested in overplanting wheat and storing the excess under bond should discuss this option with their ASC County Committee at the time of filing an application to take part in the 1965 wheat program.

FAA Purchases Measuring Device

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Agency said yesterday it has purchased a runway traction measuring device to help engineers predict stopping distances for aircraft on wet or slippery landing fields.

The $95,000 equipment, designed and developed by J. I. Thompson Co., Bellefonte, Pa., will be used for two months at FAA's aviation experiment center at Atlantic City, N. J.

Good Peony Bed Will Bloom Continuously 20 Years

By George Abraham

PEONY NOTES: A good peony bed will bloom continuously for 20 years or more. If yours is doing well, transplanting or disturbing it might rob you of blooms for many years.

However, if the plants are stubborn and will not bloom for reasons other than disease (botrytis and phytophthora) then I'd dig up the clumps and replant them. Peonies fail to bloom for many reasons: deep planting, divisions too small, poor soil, heavy shade, and disease.

Take a spade and dig way down beneath the clumps, lift roots carefully. The secret is to get roots with "eyes" (red crown buds). Then divide the roots so you have from 4 to 8 eyes on each segment. A root without an eye is useless and should be tossed out.

Planting: The way you plant may mean the difference between blooms and failure. Set the tuberous root so that it is either slightly sticking above the ground line or flush with it. Do not bury the eyes.

Place the clump in a hole which has nice fertile soil. If the subsoil is heavy clay or rock debris, add some peat or decomposed compost to it. Never use manure for peonies as it encourages botrytis blight, the villain which causes buds to blast or turn brown.

How about peonies which were diseased this spring? Safe to plant them now? Yes, there's no reason to discard them, if they're good varieties. Keep the new growth sprayed or dusted with Captan or Zineb, starting early next spring.

If you're planting tree peonies, set them so that the graft union is four inches below the soil surface.

INSTANT CANDLES: Florists have an item home decorators will be interested in. It's "instant candles", the easiest candles you ever made. You simply scoop up dry granules of instant candle wax and pour them into any glass container. You put the wick in place first, or after the wax is poured.

Instant candle wax comes in eight colors (white, green, orange, red, blue, pink, lavender, and yellow) enabling you to get any effect you wish. A five pound box of the wax pellets costs around $3.00.

MUSHROOMS: Did you know you can freeze mushrooms, dry them, and even eat them raw? I found a lot of good ideas in a booklet prepared by the American Mushroom Institute. This guide is jampacked with tips on buying, keeping and preparing mushrooms. It's filled with recipes, using mushrooms with vegetables, soups, sauces, dips, salads, snacks, and it contains a lot of hints and facts about mushrooms. If you'd like a free copy, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of THE MUSHROOM RECIPE BOOK. Make sure your envelope is large enough for this book. A 4x9½-inch envelope works fine.

POINSETTIA — How's your poinsettia doing? Is it tree-size and will it make blooms for next Christmas? It will if you understand the nature of this plant. Remember, this item won't bloom unless you give it a special day-night treatment, starting in September.

In the fall it needs a shorter day and a longer night schedule. In the subtropics nature takes care of this by providing the short days and the long nights required, but in a living room that's lighted, the plant is likely to get just the reverse and it will be retarded.

Even a very minute but continuous light will delay flowering, so a dimly lit hall will not be dark enough for your plant at night.

So if you want your plant to put on a show for Christmas, move the poinsettia to a dark room at night, starting in September and continuing until about Thanksgiving. After that the long night treatment won't help. Bring the plant out in a bright room in the morning. If you don't want to move it each night, then cover it with a plastic sheet (black) to keep the light out.

Because barnacles grow tough limy shells, zoologists long classified them as mollusks, along with clams and oysters. Actually barnacles are crustaceans and related to shrimps and crabs.

To keep plants short, florists are using growth retardants and one of these include a material known as CCC (Cycocel), sold as an 11.8 percent solution. There's a lot to be learned yet about these growth retardants, and the home owner who has a tall poinsettia can shorten it by bending or folding the stems.

If you want to know more about this and other facts concerning poinsettias, send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my revised bulletin, HOW TO CARE FOR POINSETTIAS.

Question Box

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK—D. D. of Martins Creek: "I heard recently that it was possible to save American elm trees from Dutch Elm disase by watering, liming the soil and by adding epsom salts.

The man who revived and saved infected elms dug earth away from the roots, applied water, packed in a quart of agricultural lime and he also used 6 tablespoons of epsom salts to a gallon of water.

This was poured slowly over the roots at the base of the tree. This treatment is said to be effective against the Dutch Elm disease. Does this work and do you advise me to use it on our elms?

Before answering this question let me say that I share the same feeling about our stately elms which everyone does. On my own property I have an elm infected with the disease.

If I thought that applying water, lime and Epsom Salts would save the tree I'd apply the treatment.

I sent your question to three State Colleges and to a specialist on Dutch Elm Disease, Dr. P. P. Pirone, Senior Pathologist, N.Y. Botanical Garden and no one could agree that the disease can be controlled by the treatment you mentioned.

Dr. Pirone, who has worked with this disease since 1933 writes: "There is no sure-fire way of preventing this disease at this time."

The disease is caused by a fungus spread primarily by two species of bark beetles. Tests have shown that the disease cannot be controlled by supplying the tree with nutrients of various kinds.

If there were a simple (or complicated) method of treatment, it would long ago have been adopted by the larger tree companies and would have received the blessing of state and federal workers in the field.

Teen-Dems Club In Slate Belt

WIND GAP — An organization meeting of the Teen-Dems of Area 4, which includes Pen Argyl, Wind Gap, Plainfield Twp. and Roseto, was held this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Horn of West Bangor. Twenty members were present.

The county advisor, Mrs. Louise Bethman, had charge of the meetings and the election of officers.

Those elected were John Humphrey of Plainfield Twp., chairman; Kristine Horn of West Bangor, vice chairman; Donna Abbott of Pen Argyl, secretary, and Domenic Tanzella of Pen Argyl, treasurer. The advisor for the area is Miss Nancy Williams.

The group worked on a project of making donkey pins which will be sold today at the Democratic convention in Atlantic City.

Rep. Dent Pushes For Safety Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., said yesterday a new attempt will be made after the Democratic national convention to win House passage of a bill to extend federal safety laws to small coal mines.

The bill to put mines with fewer than 15 employes under the Federal Mine Safety Law failed to win House passage last Monday although it obtained a majority vote.

It was brought up under a procedure which required a two-thirds vote for passage. The vote was 202-151.

Since this vote was on a motion to suspend House rules and not a vote on the bill itself, the measure can be brought up later.

Dent said the bill's backers will decide their strategy after Congress returns to work following the Democratic national convention.

'South Pacific' Enchanting

By Peggy Bancroft
Record Correspondent

NEWFOUNDLAND — Our friend, Noah Webster, had a definition for it:

"Enchant — to delight in the highest degree."

"South Pacific" was enchanted — enchantment — enchanting — at the Newfoundland Musical Theatre Tuesday night as the James Michener "Tales of the South Pacific" took a delighted audience straight to the islands and charmed them completely!

From the moment that Ngana (Bonnie Pitcavage) and Jerome (John David Strupcewski) appeared against the background of the tropics (created by Bette Kaelin but so real you were there), to the final "happily-ever-after" scene between the French planter and his Little Rock nurse, "South Pacific" was that rare combination of the finest in music, the most engrossing of stories, the "immortal" production we search for in entertainment and too seldom find.

The audience knew this was no only moments after the blue-and-glitter curtain (which first rose at the Haubert Theatre in 1925) went up on "South Pacific" — a star on any stage and a real starburst in Newfoundland. Forgotten were the vintage seats which are placed so close together that the audience always has a cozy time — (people must have been thinner in the old days.)

Forgotten were the "warm for the Poconos" breezes outside . . . the occasional passing of a car . . . the inevitable sounds of an audience.

Stephen Vincent Benet said it once — something about the sigh of a crowd turning back into people again. "South Pacific" took that enthralled crowd to an island paradise and held them there to the final curtain.

Made Stars Of Five

The play made setars of five people — or perhaps they've been stars all along and needed only the perfect vehicle to let the sparkle come through.

The first was Richard Tyler. His powerful, true and wonderfully-suited baritone voice made "Twin Soliloquy," "Some Enchanted Evening," "This Nearly Was Mine" proud moments in the story of a French planter, running away from life, who found what he had always searched for. Tyler was — in a word — magnificent, in his first role on the American stage.

The second was Linda Lee Whitbeck, whose charms and ability have been more or less hidden this season behind the spectacles of a stuffy secretary and the helplessness of the mother of a teenager. Linda Lee carried the role of Nellie Forbush to its happy conclusion and the audience loved "A Cockeyed Optimist;" the sudsy "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair," and the exulloing "I'm In Love With a Wonderful Guy;" Linda Lee was everyman's picture of the American nurse from Little Rock, Arkansas, the girl whose head listens while her mother says "no" and whose heart says "yes."

Keith Baker, familiar to Newfoundland Theatre audiences from previous roles — surpassed expectations as the ill-fated Lt. Joe Cable, who lost his heart and dared to die for a dream. Baker was well-suited to the role, and played it with greater ease than any he has done to date. Highlights were "Younger Than Springtime," when he seemed very young, indeed, and very far from home; and the all-too-bitter "You've Got To Be Carefully Taught."

Joan Kobin's "Bloody Mary" was delightful — and was done in her usual high-style. Her delivery of the beautiful "Bali Ha'i," and of the clever "Happy Talk" were magic moments!

Linda Bartley, well-known to Pocono Mountain residents, and an apprentice at the local theatre, made an appealing and graceful Liat . . . the native girl who will wed no one but Lt. Cable.

Comic Relief

Comic relief in a story well-blessed with tragedy and emotion, was provided by Joe Elia, as "Luther Billis." Played to the hilt by a veteran who knows his way around a soft shoe or a hard sock, Billis was resplendant in cocoanuts brought back from Florida by a local physician as souvenirs, when the Seabee performed for the sailors in "Honey Bun." The billowing sails of his tattooed ship (that took real effort!) and his willingness to make a buck, hop a fast boat to Bali Ha'i, ogle a gal or turn a sticky situation into hilarity were fun.

The audience welcomed the chance to laugh again with John Apicello — the "Stew Pot" of the Navy . . . to thrill to the twin pianos of Doug Finney and Richard Samuels . . . to admire the work of talented Bette Kaelin, who moved the South Seas into Newfoundland with her magic fingers . . .

It is small wonder that the Rodgers and Hammerstein inspiration in music and lyrics has been called "immortal." For "South Pacific" makes you laugh, cry, and sing — yes, even whistle, even if you've never whistled before! Every song is special. Every moment is a delight in the highest degree. That is the enchantment that is "South Pacific."

Congress Acts On Coin Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted yesterday to authorize the printing of "1964" on all coins minted in the future until there is no longer a coin shortage.

A bill that would give such permission to the secretary of the Treasury was sent to the Senate by voice vote. It is designed to stop hoarding, which is blamed for an acute coin shortage.

The action was taken despite a strong objection by Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., that it put the government in the position of telling a lie.

Cy Barrett Says

Horatio Alger

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

My father, as a boy, collected novels by Horatio Alger. These rags-to-riches stories are now in our attic and I could write similar books. Did Alger make much money writing according to his fiction formula of exemplary living, courage and struggle? Do you think books like this would sell to teen-agers today?

AMATEUR WRITER

DEAR WRITER:

Horatio Alger Jr. became a millionaire phenomenon, penning over 100 formuls plot books of which he was extremely ashamed.

As sales soared over the 185 million mark, he became more and more morose . . . and conscious of his literary deficiencies. When Alger's first novel appeared in 1864, America was still testing itself and his work met with great acclaim.

He was an exponent of "It's not what you know, but who you know" with heavy dashes of perspiration. His plots inevitably revolved around a poor boy who saved a tycoon's son from bodily harm. The great man rewarded the urchin with a business position.

Readers then relaxed, as the deserving lad began his arduous, unswerving climb to the top. Today youngsters have a more sophisticated understanding of business, and are not as susceptible to success soap operas.

Although light on work interest, they place a great reliance on creativity.

CY

DEAR CY:

My girl friend Freda is taking an interest in another man but she still advises me on my nervous problems. She says I should save my money because "The state employment service cannot ask employers to pay travel expenses for job applicants they interview." Is this true? We both agree my nerves are getting out of hand, and I must get a job elsewhere.

LARRY

DEAR LARRY:

I can't contest the virtues of saving money, but Freda is incorrect. The state employment service can sometimes secure approval of employer-paid expenses for job applicants when workers to fill openings are in short supply. Also when the job in question is a high level one. The job market, not legislation, is involved.

Your nerves might appreciate getting farther away from Freda without leaving town.

CY

DEAR CY:

With Japan preparing for the Olympic games, it would seem there could be big opportunities to be had in this country in connection with the event. I'm thinking of tying in by selling buttons and programs wholesale in this country.

What do you think of my flying over there and getting the drop on the situation?

JOHNNY D.

DEAR JOHNNY:

Packed Tokyo is now jampacked with construction and manufacturing activity, preparing for the Olympic games.

Besides buttons and jillions of knock-knacks, Japan has already completed most plans for inundating this country with momentos of the island-shaking event. The Japanese have also finalized plans to indoctrinate the world during the games (two weeks, starting October 10) with Japanese culture.

Instead of a Johnny who arrived too late, why not consider capitalizing on a tremendous need following the games? This is a huge concept but take a chew. Japan is a country of tremendous psychological ups and downs and attached much importance to them. Politicians and public-spirited citizens of Japan are currently very concerned about a national mental letdown following the competition.

No longer will Olympic songs be sung, or parades of athletes hypo the oriental outlook. Then and there will be opportunity. Capture it and you'll find how easy converting yen to dollars can be.

Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Thursday, August 27

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — It will NOT matter if you are not first with the most, but it WILL count if you are early with quality. And, if you are late for a valid reason, you can still gain. Concentrate on purposeful aims. And display some extra caution if travelling.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Is your schedule planned with adequacy for this day's demands? New cultural patterns are developing and as a Taurean, you should be taking an active part in them. Be careful to avoid needless errors.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Tact and a good sense of balance will be important this day. Set the tempo best suited to YOUR activities and do not permit others to disrupt it.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Rigidity and free-wheeling maneuverability are your opposing choices. Neither is correct. The skilled, self controlled middle-of-the-roader will gain now. Resist a temptation to join in fruitless arguments.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Excellent Sun influences. Favors increased prestige and advancement are all promised on this fine day. Create, administer, sustain an industrious level befitting worthwhile goals.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Where there's a will there can be useless dispute! No matter how stimulated you may feel, shun over aggressiveness. Direct your energies into a constructive channel and you can achieve a grand day's work or play.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Give the other person a chance to express his views and show his wares before you arbitrarily reject him. You could profit immensely.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Be your usual systematic self now and in all activities. Maintain an imperturbed but brisk tempo. Do not undertake more than you can reasonably handle, however.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Whether in the role of spectator or doer now, you can greatly influence others. See to sure that your aims and procedures are sound, feasible and efficient.

December 23 to January 20 (Capricorn) — A new level of competence should be yours now. Leave no stone unturned in your quest for knowledge, correct data and the "right" approach. The rest is for the striving. Try to conclude loose matters.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — A certain situation may seem confusing even misleading. Don't let it get you off course or send you off on tangents. Instead, get to the SOURCE and, once it is found, follow the force. Know what you want and handle it.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Alone, matters pleasure fulness should boost your enthusiasm for doing well. There should be little to prevent you from enjoying the day to the full. You deserve your best.

YOU BORN TODAY are of rare, rather unique disposition, endowed with an inner sense of responsibility. Humanitarian, when your faculties are fully developed, you are capable of being quite successful in the realm of public affairs. Your ability to see both sides of a question lends you a judicial quality. You have an intuitive sense which helps you to make knowledge than many others.

Red China, Soviet Union At Odds Over Africa

WASHINGTON — Independent Africa — plagued by economic problems, harassed by tribal conflicts, and handicapped by a scarcity of educated leaders — has become a battleground in the "new cold war" between the two Communist giants, the Soviet Union and Red China.

The Red rivalry, manifesting the ideological split in the international Communist movement, is essentialy a power struggle between the Russians and the Chinese, a struggle in which the total arsenal of available political and economic weapons is being used.

Each of the two leading Communist countries seeks to extend its influence as widely as possible among the new nations of the Dark Continent, through high-level visits, loans, grants, technical aid, and scholarship offers to education-hungry Africans.

To offset superior Soviet capacity for spreading influence through economic assistance, the Red Chinese picture themselves as particularly fitted to understand the people and problems of the emerging African countries; they emphasize that they too are non-white and must contend with difficult problems of economic development similar to those of Africa.

The Soviet Union, the Chinese say to the Africans, is an imperialist ally of the United States and is intent upon dominating the world.

Meanwhile, the Africans, while finding it to their advantage to let both Communist powers bid for their favor, are becoming increasingly aware of the dangers of accepting aid from them. This wariness has led many of them to avoid taking sides in the Moscow-Peking dispute while using the Communist courtship to gain increased consideration from the dispensers of aid from the West.

In seeking to curry favor with African peoples during a lengthy trip to 10 African nations last winter, Red China's Premier Chou En-Lai presented his country as the champion of dark-skinned and less-privileged peoples everywhere. Chou espoused a policy toward Africa that offers a direct challenge to the Soviet Union.

The Chinese leader emphasized Chinese support for the African fight against imperialism and for African neutrality and unity. Peking, Chou said, opposes interference in African affairs from any quarter; its economic and technical assistance has no political strings attached.

The Chinese are trying to capitalize on difficulties the Russians have encountered since 1955 in attemping to gain friends and supporters in Africa — criticism of shoddy Communist goods, isolation of Russian technicians from the natives, lukewarm support of militant African nationalists, and the growing racial prejudice manifested in Russia and East Europe against African students.

The Soviet Union nevertheless has a vastly larger capacity to assist underdeveloped lands. Soviet and East European aid to Africa has been about nine times the Chinese total. The dispute with Peking has spurred Moscow to new efforts after a slacking off of aid-to-Africa programs in 1962 and 1963.

General Hospital Suffers When Drive Fails

This is the fourth in a series of 13 articles on the Community Chest in Monroe County and the 12 agencies which receive support from the unified drive. Appearing each Monday and Thursday in The Daily Record, the series was written by Charles McNett, Daily Record Reporter.

EAST STROUDSBURG —Harry Smith, superintendent of General Hospital of Monroe County, said that the hospital lost $69,458.43 on free services rendered last year. Every penny that this year's Community Chest appeal fails its goal means that much more loss for the hospital, he pointed out.

About 4,765 patient days were devoted to free service, he said, some 10 per cent of total hospital work. It cost $135,066.08 out of a total budget of nearly $1.3 million. Money received for charitable purpose breaks down this way, Smith explained.

Paid $12,500

The Community Chest paid $12,500, the County Commissioners $5,500, subscription accounts came up with $5,719, and there was a state appropriation of $41,888.13.

Charles Swisher pointed out, for example, that the state will pay for 60 days of medical aid to the aged. An aged woman recently had to spend 240 days at the hospital. As he put it, "We're a service institution, we don't just turn people out. So she spent 180 free days at the hospital."

For instance, no one at the hospital worried about fees when the victims of last summer's explosive-laden truck blast began coming in. Most of the surgical staff were there in the early hours of the morning as more than 10 injured were brought to the hospital by ambulance. Two firemen required four-hour operations.

That's the attitude of the entire staff at the hospital — and it is a big one. Smith said there are 25 administrative personnel, five medical records keepers, a pharmacist, two physical therapists, 13 lab technicians, 11 x-ray personnel, six laundry workers, 15 housekeepers, 13 orderlies, 12 maintenance personnel, two ambulance drivers, two technicians to administer anesthesia, 91 full and part-time registered nurses, and 48 practical nurses and nurses' aides.

Opening of the new $2 million wing at the hospital this fall will increase the hospital staff to even larger proportions, Smith added.

No Pay Hike For Employes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There's little chance for Philadelphia's 28,000 employes to get a general pay increase next year, finance director James L. Ferguson said. Mayor James Tate has directed department heads to prune budget requests in hopes of holding the line against any tax increases.

Male Whale Gets Companionship

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's an old story with a whale of a twist.

Willie, 1,500 pound pilot whale, spent a dateless Saturday night in his home in Aquarama's whale pool, when suddenly not one, but two, 1,000 pound maiden pilot whales, flown from Newfoundland by Aquarama curator, Donald Wilkie, were deposited in his domain.

The whale pool has not been the same since. Willie's excitement over the new arrivals was such that, according to Wilkie, a net now separates the sexes.

The new arrivals came in special crates which Wilkie designed. Skin divers held the air-breathing creatures aloft in the pool for about two hours until they adjusted to their new environment and began moving about themselves.

Meanwhile, Willie is eying both of them, trying to decide which will be his date next Saturday night.

The New England section of the country received its name from Capt. John Smith. The wooded hills, narrow green valleys and rocky hillsides reminded him of his native England.

Meeting Postponed

NEW YORK (AP)—A special meeting of Republic Corp. stockholders were postponed again yesterday.

The meeting had been called by Victor M. Carter, former president and still a director, who is attempting to regain control of the company, a producer of films, television shows and plastic products.

R. L. Huffines Jr., president and chairman, reported that inspectors had not completed counting proxies and revocations.

The inspectors were directed to report the count at 11 a.m. next Monday and the meeting was set for 2 p.m. that day
